POISON IN CANDY IS CHARGE

Three Women and a Child Are Seriously Ill in East Boston

Candy alleged to be poisonous was under analysis in East Boston today, following announcement that three women and a child were seriously ill at No. 1117 Saratoga street as a result of eating sweets containing ptomaine.

The Totman & Ham store at Bremen and Bennington streets in Orient Heights, which sold the candy, has been ordered to discontinue its sale. Board of Health physicians are conducting the investigation.

Those suffering from the poisonous substances are:

Mrs. Stephen D. Boudreau, twenty-four.

Madeline L. Boudreau, her two-year-old daughter.

Mrs. Minerva Williams, Mrs. Boudreau's mother.

Mrs. Charles Bartlett, forty-five, of No. 296 West Selden street, Mattapan, who was visiting the Boudreaus.

Mrs. Boudreau was reported as growing weaker, although hope for her recovery was held out.

The candy was purchased Saturday night. Drs. George H. Schwartz and Charles Mahoney are attending the stricken family.

EIGHT ARRESTED AT COMMUNIST MEETING

St. Louis, Nov. 10.—Agents of the Department of Justice arrested eight men at a meeting held under the auspices of the Communist party at St. Louis.

BAY STATE LENDS 'PEP' TO LEGION

Cheers for Massachusetts and Logan Open Convention at Minneapolis

Minneapolis, Nov. 10.—The Bay State delegation of the American Legion created a great furore when it entered the Convention hall in the Auditorium today. Marching down the aisle, it startled the crowd by its strong cheering for Massachusetts. It was "Rah rah rah, Massachusetts, Massachusetts, Massachusetts."

As the delegates moved into their section there was another outburst thrice repeated. It was "Rah, Rah, Rah, Logan, Logan, Logan."

From that time on until the convention was called to order, thirty-five minutes later, there was lusty cheering by the other state delegations, blazing of patriotic airs by the bands and singing of campaign songs, but Massachusetts made the first big popular demonstration and

District Attorney Tufts and Department of Justice Men Get 4,000 Volumes

Quantities of revolutionary literature from the pens of Lenin and Trotzky, the property of Boston headquarters of the Communist Party, were seized in a raid today on the plant of the McNamee Book Binding Company, No. 32 Brattle square, Cambridge.

The raiders secured in process of binding four thousand volumes of the "Proletarian Revolution in Russia," with introduction, notes and supplementary chapters by Louis C. Fraina, editor of the "Revolutionary Age" and the "Class Struggle."

The raid, closely following a series of articles published by the American, exposing the workers of the "Reds" in Boston, was conducted under the personal supervision of District Attorney Nathan A. Tufts.

The bindery is now run by Samuel Fish of No. 46 Harwood street, Dorchester, and several associates, it

Strikers Fight Way Back to Work in One Ohio Mine

Steubenville, O., Nov. 10.—The first break in the ranks of the 40,000 union miners in Ohio came today when 75 of the 140 miners of the High Shaft mine of the Steubenville Coal and Mining Company returned to work at the old scale.

Pickets failed to stop the men from entering the mine despite the fact that several clashes occurred and four shots were fired from ambush at the returning miners. Police and deputies on the scene prevented the clashes from taking a serious turn.

STRIP CLOTHING STORE, EVEN TO WINDOW

Apparently without regard for the almost continuous traffic outside, thieves entered the clothing store of M. Dale & Co., No. 470 West Broadway, South Boston, and after rifling the store, proceeded to strip the display window. The store is near Dorchester street and West Broadway, the heart of South Boston's business centre. The robbery was discovered by the proprietor when he opened his place today. It was committed some time between closing at midnight, Saturday, and early today. Figures clothed with suits and overcoats were relieved of their apparel. A bolt of blue serge cloth containing about fifty yards, caps and other articles were taken from the windows. The store was opened recently and the stolen articles were not insured. The loss is estimated at $700.

CONDEMN PLUMB PLAN IN REPORT TO THE HOUSE

Washington, Nov. 10.—Government ownership and the Plumb plan—organized labor's plan for operation—were both condemned in the report of the House Interstate and Foreign Commerce Committee to the House today in support of railroad legislation provided by the Esch bill. The anti-strike provision of the Cummins bill pending in the Senate Interstate Commerce Committee was also disapproved.

GOVERNMENT STANDS FIRM

Washington, Nov. 10.—Organized labor will be mobilized to support the striking coal miners.

The executive council of the American Federation of Labor decided to issue a call tomorrow for a series of nation-wide mass meetings by labor, the dates to be set later.

"It does not look as though tomorrow is going to be 'Armistice Day' for labor," said W. D. Mahon, one of the members of the council.

Washington, Nov. 10. — The government will go ahead with its proceedings against the coal strike leaders. The proclamation of the American Federation of Labor caused some surprise in administration circles, but it will have no effect on the pronounced policy of the Federal government, according to officials here today.

It is considered that President Samuel Gompers of the Labor Federation and his conservative followers have lost control of the labor movement, and that the radicals have swept the field.

'MUST UPHOLD AMERICAN SOVEREIGNTY,' U.S. REPLY TO FEDERATION

FINISH FIGHT BETWEEN MINERS AND GOVERNMENT PREDICTED

It is being freely predicted here that a split in labor is not the remotest of possibilities. On the other hand, it is universally recognized here that labor realizes that it is time to face with the greatest crisis in its history and is desperately determined to come out of the conflict with the government as nearly whole as it can.

Talk of a general strike was in the air when the executive council of the American Federation of Labor met today.

"The executive council of the American Federation of Labor has done all that lies within its power to do," said Matthew Woll, vice-president of the Federation, today. "It is now left to the international unions to take whatever action they see fit."

WILL ACCEPT CONSEQUENCES.

The executive council will mark time in Washington until definite action is taken by the strike leaders in Indianapolis.

"We will accept whatever consequences may follow." These words taken from a committee report made at the annual convention in Atlantic City of the American Federation of Labor urging that labor's rights against injunction proceedings, were put forth today by every labor leader when questioned as to the possibilities for future action.

"Railroad workers' unions connected with the American Federation of Labor already have set a strike date in the event that their demands are not met by the railroad administration and leaders expressed a belief today that the strike might come in time to help the coal miners.'"

NATION IS TWO CAMPS.

The administration takes the stand that the issue is sharply drawn. If it recedes from the position taken, the radical group now seeking to dominate in the United States will rule, and decrees of government and decisions of its courts will be scorned or obeyed at will. If it pursues its course, as it insists it not only will, but must, it may meet with considerable opposition, but it is felt that ultimately, backed by the conservatives in labor and by public opinion at large, it will make its authority paramount in the land.

The country is divided into two hostile camps. The gravity of the situation of the United States has been likened to what the situation was in Europe in July, 1914, a few weeks before the great war burst upon the world.

The industrial Sarajevo, observers here point out, has been passed. The day of arbitration has arrived.

The most hopeful signs which leaders seem to see here is the split which they confess to discern is going on inside the American Federation of Labor and that ultimately, reinforced by the march of events, the conservatives will win the day.

LEADERS ARE RADICAL.

Numerically the radicals are said to be in the majority among the leaders, though not among the men. And the conservatives are handicapped by the fact that they cannot take advantage of the attitude of the government at present to strengthen their case lest they be accused of siding with the "enemy" and thus losing out altogether.

Representatives of the coal miners here declare that it does not matter whether acting President John L. Lewis, their leader, obeys the order of the Federal court in Indianapolis commanding him to call off the strike, or refuses to obey it. The men themselves, they say, will not return to the mines and the strike will go on the same as before.

The Department of Justice, however, is waiting to see what will happen between now and tomorrow night at 6 o'clock, before making another move. Attorney-General Palmer today did not appear to have departed from his usual calm; it is said that the latest developments did not come to him as much of a surprise.

At the Capitol, conversation in the lobbies concerning even the much-disputed Article X. of the Peace treaty reservations was eclipsed by animated discussions of the situation created by the industrial developments of the past 48 hours.

"THE RUBICON CROSSED.

Republicans as well as Democrats seem to be of the opinion that the Federal government has crossed the Rubicon and, whether it will or not, and whether the battle be long or short, hard or facile, it must go on to a decision.

The vast majority of both parties have announced themselves as behind the administration in what they term "The fight for law and order."

The general impression in Washington, therefore, seems to be that the nation has reached one of the most serious crises in its history and that the next 48 hours only can tell which way the country is headed; whether calm reasoning will prevail or whether the people are in for a spell of troublesome times.

A carefully worded statement of the executive council of the American Federation of Labor still leaves the way clear for the strike leaders to obey the court's order, but it encourages a contest by promising the support of all organized labor.

ATTITUDE OF LABOR.

The whole attitude of labor is set forth in these paragraphs of the declaration:

"We declare that the proceedings in this case are unwarranted, as they are unparalleled in the history of our country, and in a democracy like it is an injustice which not only the workers, but all liberty-loving American will repudiate and call a mad redress. The citizenship of our country cannot afford to permit the establishment or maintenance of a principle which strikes at the very foundation of justice and freedom. To restore the confidence in the institutions of our country and the respect due the courts, this injunction should be withdrawn and the records cleared from so outrageous a proceeding.

"In all the facts in the case, the miners' strike is justified. We indorse it. We are convinced of the justice of the miners' cause. We pledge to the miners the full support of the American Federation of Labor and appeal to the workers and citizenship of our country to give like indorsement and aid to the men engaged in this momentous struggle."

T. D. HERO IN RAID.

District Attorney Tufts was accompanied by agents of the Department of Justice, representatives of the adjutant-general's office, Sergeant John Gramstoff, a messenger in the office of the District Attorney, who is a Yankee Division veteran, and Lieutenant Timothy J. Leahy of Station 1, Cambridge.

Following receipt of information turned over to Mr. Tufts by Captain Herbert Gordon, a search warrant was procured, and the party descended on No. 32 Brattle square.

Asked if he had any radical literature in the plant, Mr. Fish said that he had, and produced it on order.

Fish told the district attorney that he received orders to bind 2,000 volumes of the book each month and that the Progress Printing Company, No. 49 Dudley street, Boston, he was to receive $350 for this work, he stated. Of the entire number of volumes, Fish said he had already shipped 1,000 to Chicago and 1,525 more to No. 225 Washington street, which was the headquarters of the Socialist Party.

After further questioning, District Attorney Tufts and the police, which was loaded with books.

No arrests were made. The book here the arrests that the printed by the Communist Press, New York, and also carried the name of the Progress Printing Company on Dudley street.

Also at Washington street in the headquarters of the Communists in Boston, as well as the I. W. W., and the joint board of the Amalgamated Clothing Workers of America, the most radical organizations in the country, Mr. McNamee stated today that he will put a stop to the use of his name by the Cambridge bindery.

GROCERS CALLED UNJUST BY SHERBURNE

General Sherburne declared that a $3 purchase of groceries in order to secure sugar was "out of all proportion," and announced that his commission had suggested the installation of a card system for identification.

The general admitted that there was justification for the practice of requiring the purchase of K reasonable amount of groceries as a condition for receiving sugar.

"Some sort of a lever of this kind may help against the avaricious sugar-hoarder," he said, "but a $3 purchase is out of all proportion. We will be glad to receive any complaints against any demand so unreasonable as this.

MUST BE STOPPED.

"This practice is a rank injustice upon the people, and must be stopped. We will stop it."

General Sherburne's statement was made following the receipt of a communication by the American from the Department of Justice at Washington. This communication, in response to a telegram from the American, stated that combination sales had been permitted in some instances as a measure of conservation.

Where this practice is in operation, it was stated, the merchant should not require a customer to purchase an unreasonable quantity of goods, nor restrict his choice, nor should he charge an unreasonable price for his goods. It was then suggested by the writer, Howard Figg, special assistant to the Attorney-General, that the matter be taken up with General Sherburne.

Referring to the necessity for protection from sugar hoarders, General Sherburne said:

The other day a man was caught with twenty-one packages of sugar. He had gone around from store to store picking up sugar in small quantities. It is that sort of practice that is making the sugar shortage. That forces the people to make some little sacrifice to protect themselves again the hoarder.

$3 PURCHASE TOO HIGH.

"It is not a severe hardship for the head of a family to consolidate his order. He has an idea of how much flour, vegetables, bacon, etc., he will need. By thus grouping his order he establishes himself as a regular customer, entitled to his proportion of sugar.

"It is difficult, if not impossible, to fix an arbitrary amount that the purchaser should buy. But $3 is an unreasonable amount. Any practice of that kind will be severely dealt with.

"The practice of deliberately holding sugar to get trade is bad. We will do what can be done to stop it."

General Sherburne said that the system devised by the commission for the taxing of sugar from the refiner to the wholesaler and thence to the retailer is beginning to show satisfactory results.

"There ought not to be any substantial shortage for the next two months," he said.

DISTRIBUTION IS FAIR.

"We have not as yet found any evidence of inequality of distribution. The public may rest assured that any evidence will be placed at the door of the guilty party.

"Thus far the refineries and jobbers have been co-operating very well."

General Sherburne said that the report that certain Boston grocers of influence are receiving more than their allotment of sugar because of alleged financial associations with the refinery interests has reached the ear of the commission.

These reports indicated that the favored firms were profiting at the expense of their competitors who happened to be "on the outside."

"We have found nothing to substantiate the reports," General Sherburne said. "Some firms anticipated the shortage and loaded up, that's all."

Tons of Sugar Shipped Back to Cuba; Grocers Charged With Profiteering Practices

Sugar is being shipped back to Cuba while the people here are being victimized by grasping grocerymen, who dole out small portions of sugar only to persons who make specified purchases of other commodities amounting to $2 or $3.

Numerous charges to this effect reached the American today from housewives and others who either cannot obtain sugar or who are forced into making unnecessary purchases of groceries in order to obtain a pound or ½ pound of sugar from their grocers.

Letters received by the American today clearly indicate that the system of sugar hoarding and consequent profiteering by grocers is not confined to Boston. Complaints have come in not only from places far apart in the Commonwealth, but from outside the State as well.

WAREHOUSES PACKED.

Several of the complaints are directed against one well-known chain of grocery stores. In one case the housewife was obliged to buy $3 worth of surplus groceries which she did not need in order to obtain a pound of sugar. Another woman had to buy 75 cents worth of groceries to obtain four ounces of sugar.

While this condition exists the storage warehouses are packed with sugar. Ships are carrying millions of pounds of sugar to England and France. Additional millions of pounds are being delivered at American ports each week. Cuban warehouses are said to be choked with the commodity which is so scarce here. And to top all this comes the statement that cargoes of sugar are being sent back to Cuba so as to manipulate prices here.

"No wonder sugar conditions are as they are," said the chief engineer of a big freighter who has sailed out of these ports for twenty years. "I took a full shipload of several thousands tons to Cuba this month, and at least one bag in ten was wasted. The bags were taken from the ship's hold by winches, four bags at a time, each weighing 400 pounds. It is a painfully unnecessary sight to see thousands of pounds of sugar drop right into the water. There is plenty of sugar in Cuba."

Here are some of the letters reaching the American from victims of the sugar profiteers:

"Editor Boston American: I want to tell you how pleased I was to see the article in Saturday evening's American in regard to sugar conditions in Cambridge. I have had a good chance to find out about the discrimination in favor of some customers' as I live alone and cannot buy in large quantities. I have only had one pound of sugar in a month and in order to obtain that I had to buy $1 worth of groceries of such inferior quality that I could not eat some of it.

"On Saturday morning clerks in three stores sold no sugar, and the fourth said 'all sold out.' This was an hour after the store opened and there were only a couple of persons in the store. No, it is not human nature or horse sense that grocers who cater to a select trade are going to calmly sit back and let their competitor draw trade by selling small bags of sugar to persons who make especial purchases. I believe almost all grocers have sugar, but sell only to a privileged few.

"In a city where the tax rate is $28.80 per $1,000; coal, $13.75; milk, 17 cents, and bakers' food going higher all the time, certainly the food commissioner ought to do something so that persons can get at least three pounds of sugar a month without buying out the store.

"Yours truly,

"CAMBRIDGE."

Editor Boston American—"As the Boston American is the only paper that stands up for the rights of the working people, I appeal to you on this sugar question. I have been trading with a certain store for years and have become me as a regular customer. They now want me to buy 75 cents worth of groceries before I can get a quarter of a pound of sugar, and $1 worth before I can get one pound.

"But if I buy $15 worth of groceries I get ten pounds of sugar, which shows that there is no sugar shortage in that store.

"How can I, the mother of four children, and my husband in the hospital, buy all kinds of groceries when I am doing all I can to buy the necessaries of life? I also went to the State House and received no satisfaction whatever. They told me it was lawful.

"Hoping you can help us poor mothers with small children to look after by putting a stop to this unlawful profiteering. I remain,

"Yours very truly,

"MRS. CHARLES SALIM."

FINE DR. S. F. ARNOLD IN AUTO SPEEDING CASE

Dr. Seth F. Arnold, former member of Boston City Council and the State Legislature, was convicted in municipal court today of overspeeding his automobile and insulting State Guardsman. On the first count he was fined $10, and on the second $25. He appealed. Dr. Arnold, who has offices on Hunting-ton avenue, was arrested on Beacon street as he was on his way to a train.

Apply Pepsin

Every Day to Your Teeth

All Statements Approved by High Dental Authorities

To Fight Film

DENTAL SCIENCE has proved that the great tooth wrecker is a slimy film. You can feel it with your tongue. Most tooth troubles are caused by it. It clings to the teeth, enters the crevices, hardens and stays. And teeth will discolor and decay where that film stays, however much you brush them. That is why millions of tooth brush users fail to save their teeth.

That film is what discolors — not the teeth. It is the basis of tartar. It holds food substance which ferments and forms acid. It holds the acid in contact with the teeth to cause decay.

Millions of germs breed in it. They, with tartar, are the chief cause of pyorrhea. Scientists have for years sought ways to combat that film, but the methods proved inadequate. Then one man, after extensive research, applied activated pepsin—a digestant—to the film. And many clinical tests seem to clearly prove that he solved this great film problem.

We ask you to see for yourself. This pepsin method is employed in Pepsodent, and we offer a 10-Day Tube. See what it does when you use it. See the results in ten days. It will show you a way to clean your teeth as you never have cleaned them before.

See How They Glisten

The object in Pepsodent is to dissolve the film, then to constantly combat it.

But pepsin alone is inert. It must be activated, and the usual agent is an acid harmful to the teeth. So pepsin long seemed forbidden.

Now a harmless, activating method has been found. And that method, used in Pepsodent, makes efficient pepsin possible.

Able authorities have proved Pepsodent by convincing clinical tests.

It has been adopted, and is now endorsed, by leading dentists everywhere.

It does what nothing else has done, and everyone should use it.

We urge you to prove it yourself. Ask us for a 10-Day Tube.

Look at your teeth and see what it does. See how they glisten.

Department of Justice Rushes Plans to Drive 'Reds' Out of Country

By International News Service.

Washington, Nov. 10.—Proceedings for the deportation of undesirable aliens, caught in the government dragnet, were under way today, at the direction of the Attorney-General and the Department of Justice.

Attorney-General Palmer has given orders to all district attorneys to expedite the handling of the cases.

Up to noon today, 252 arrests of "reds" had been made by Department of Justice agents, a statement issued from the Attorney-General's office this afternoon stated.

"All of those arrested thus far will be deported," the statement declared.

Arrests were made as follows: Newark, N. J., 51; Baltimore, 10; Cleveland, 17; Buffalo, 14; Hartford, Ct., 25; Chicago, 9; Detroit, 49; Akron, O., 32; Monessen, Pa., 20; Bentleyville, Pa., 3; Universal, Pa., 4; Philadelphia, 10; Trenton, N. J., 1; New York City, 37.

It was also reported that 250 suspects had been arrested in Detroit.

The manifesto published by the "Federation of Unions of Russian Workers of the United States and Canada," made public here today, indicated the most radical designs of this organization.

"Communism in the economic field must inevitably be crowned with anarchy in the field of politics," declared the manifesto.

"The State is unnecessary, because with the extermination of classes its principal function will cease the preservation of the dominion of one class.

"Remove your dirty collars and move into luxurious palaces," was another passage.

35 Suspects Held for Investigation in New York; Lenine Leading Spirit

New York, Nov. 10.—Only 25 of the 500 persons arrested by the Federal, State and city officials in the raid on 73 communist headquarters in Greater New York, on Saturday night, were held by the authorities today for further examination in the nation-wide crusade against Bolshevik sympathizers. All of the others were released. Benjamin Gitlow and "Jim" Larkin were arrested on charges of criminal anarchy.

President Hayes of the Miners' Union May Come to Rescue of Lewis

By International News Service.

Indianapolis, Nov. 10.—The movements of Frank J. Hayes, President of the United Mine Workers of America, cast an air of mystery about the conference of union leaders called here today to act upon Federal Judge Anderson's orders commanding the recall of the miners' strike call.

Although the union executive was not registered at the downtown hotels, the report was current that Hayes was in the city and that he might figure prominently in the conference. Other union officials professed to be ignorant of the movements of their executive, who has been confined, recovering from a nervous breakdown.

NEEDY CHILDREN PLEAD TO AMERICAN FOR CHRISTMAS BASKETS

MOOSE PLEDGE AID

Malden Dancer to Conduct Party as Benefit for Fund

says Cardinal O'Connell, "which perhaps would otherwise be cheerless during the Christmas season, is its best commendation, and I feel sure the appeal will meet with a gratifying response from those who are blessed with sufficient means to be able to help others. I am enclosing my mite, and I trust it will be of service."

These words of praise from this prominent churchman follow those of Mayor Peters and Governor Coolidge, recently made a national political figure because of his decisive re-election. All three agree that the Boston American's Christmas Basket Fund is a fine means of bringing joy to the poor of this city and that it should be well supported by persons in a position to assist.

Checks have begun to pour into the Boston American office from charitably inclined people who wish to do their bit to help the good cause along. Some of the most recent contributors are Mrs. Philip Hale of Brookline, Walter C. Bayles, a prominent Boston business man, and Roland H. Boutwell of State street.

PITIABLE LETTERS RECEIVED.

Other recent contributors include Galen L. Stone, the widely known banker; C. F. Rockwell, Inc., automobile distributors; Attorney John J. Hayes, R. L. Agassiz, Cosmopolitan Trust Company, Joseph W. Lund, Margaret P. Greenough, 2d, Max Rubin, John H. Dunn Club, John S. Ames and eight-year-old Edward Landsberg. The last-named sent $1. Don't you think that's a fine thing for a little lad of eight to do?

They all realize what a full basket of good food will mean to a poor family on Christmas Day.

Many pitiable letters are being received by the American asking for food. Read the following letter from a little crippled girl and then ask yourself whether you intend to help:

"Dear Editor—I am a poor crippled girl. My mother is all I have. I can't walk at all. I have been sick for years. Please don't forget to send me a basket as I am very much in need for something, so please don't forget us. We need help. For God's sake don't forget."

Do you wish to bring joy on Christmas Day into the heart of that poor little crippled child? How her eyes will sparkle when she sees that basket of food! Wouldn't you like to be there to see her when she unpacks all those goodies which your dollars make possible? This case is but one of many similar ones. There is much suffering in Greater Boston today.

MOTHER WITH 8 CHILDREN.

A little boy writes the following letter:

"Please send me a Christmas basket. My father is dead and my mother has been left with six children. My oldest brother tries to support the family. I am twelve years old."

How many luxuries do you think there are in that family? Do you notice the way in which the little fellow puts it? He says his eldest brother "tries" to support the family. Doesn't that description say volumes? Can't you imagine that brave young man battling for his mother and five brothers and sisters? There are many more just like that going on in this city every day. Wouldn't a basket of food be a God-send to such homes as those?

These letters are genuine and are in the hands of the Christmas Basket editor. Anyone who doubts their authenticity is invited to step into the American office to see the missives.

DANCER AIDING FUND.

Several agencies are at work to aid the Basket Fund. Miss Pauline Mason, the clever little Malden dancer, is going to give the fund a boost by conducting a dance in Odd Fellows' Hall, Malden square, on the night of December 2. There will be an entertainment of a superior sort for an hour or so and then general dancing until midnight. Miss Mason believes she will raise a goodly sum.

Many members of the Boston Lodge, Loyal Order of Moose, have pledged themselves to aid the Christmas Basket Fund. Several of them are planning to help the fund in different ways. Work of this character, involving assistance to children, appeals mightily to them, as their organization supports a large home for orphans out West. Thousands of boys and girls are cared for.

Thomas F. Reidy, one of the principal officials of the organization in New England, said: "You can count on us to help you. The work of distributing baskets of food among the poor on Christmas Day is a most commendable one and we will certainly do all we can to help it along. Whenever the happiness of a poor child is at stake you can figure on our organization to help."

EVERY LITTLE BIT HELPS.

The Boston American welcomes from any person or organization willing to aid in such a fine project. The more who put their shoulders to the wheel the more money will be collected and therefore the more poor mothers and children will be fed. Contributions will be publicly acknowledged through the columns of the American.

If you wish that little crippled girl or that little fellow with five brothers and sisters to have a cheery, happy Christmas, obey that impulse NOW by sending a contribution to the BOSTON AMERICAN CHRISTMAS BASKET FUND, No. 80 Summer street, Boston, Mass.

82 Boylston Street, BOSTON, Mass.

Dear Mr. English:-

I have received your communication of October 23rd informing me that the BOSTON AMERICAN is about to begin the collection of its annual Christmas Basket Fund, and I wish to assure you that I earnestly hope that the Fund will not fall short of your highest expectation.

The happiness which the undertaking will bring to many homes, which perhaps would otherwise be cheerless during the Christmas Season, is its best commendation, and I feel sure the appeal will meet with a gratifying response from those who are blessed with sufficient means to be able to help others.

I am enclosing my mite, and I trust it will be of service.

The principal damage was to the printing plant of Nathan Sawyer & Son. The alarm was sounded by Clarence Bird, an employe.

TRYING TO IDENTIFY BOY DROWNED IN DORCHESTER

Police of the Fields Corner station and City Hospital officials are endeavoring to solve the identity of a boy of about eighteen years of age who lost his life by falling into the creek off Fulton street, Dorchester.

William Sellegrenn, Jr., and Thomas Osborn of No. 18 Port Norfolk street recovered the body.

The following description is furnished: Eighteen or nineteen years of age, about 130 pounds, light complexion, brown hair, wearing a dark blue suit, brown overcoat, soft shirt and collar, green knitted tie and brown shoes.

LOST MAINE PUBLISHER IS FOUND DROWNED

Damariscotta, Me., Nov. 10.—The body of Leon A. Gray, aged forty-five, a publisher, of Damariscotta, missing since October 20, has been found tangled in the moorings of his boat.

Gray was working on his boat the day he disappeared. It is believed that he fell overboard and drowned. He is survived by a wife and two daughters.

SEEK GIRL NEAR BOSTON IN NEW YORK MURDER

Letter Gives Fresh Stimulus to Search for Slayer of Lempke

By International News Service.

New York, Nov. 10.—A mysterious letter which was said to contain a new clew today gave fresh stimulus to the police search for the slayer of John W. Lempke, wealthy Flushing, L. I., youth, who was found strangled to death on his motor boat, his body fully clothed in a woman's garments.

The police also are seeking to learn the whereabouts of Lempke's former sweetheart. The two had quarreled and separated, and the girl is said to be living now in a town near Boston. It was explained that the police do not attach any suspicion to her, but want to learn from her something about the death youth's associates.

The letter, which promises to play an important part in the case was mailed from New York to Dr. A. W. Thompson of Flushing, the Lempke family physician.

A $10,000 reward for information that will lead to the arrest of the murderer has been offered by the father of the dead boy, and a number of private detectives are working on the case. Lempke, who was only twenty years old, was found dead three weeks ago, the body suspended from a beam in the cabin of his motor boat. The police first claimed the youth had killed himself.

REV. DR. WASHBURN TO BE DEAN OF SCHOOL

Rev. Henry Bradford Washburn, D. D., professor of church history in the Episcopal Theological School, Cambridge, and secretary of the War Commission of the Episcopal Church, will be elected dean of the Episcopal Theological School at the next meeting of the Board of Trustees. He will succeed Dean George Hodges, who died last Summer in New Hampshire. After the Rev. R. T. Slattery, rector of Grace Church, New York, declined this position, Dr. Washburn's name was at once mentioned.

SUGAR 25 CENTS POUND IS ORDER IN ATLANTA

He states that Atlanta jobbers are paying Louisiana planters 21½ cents in car lots, and jobbers are allowed a profit of 1 cent a pound.

BRITISH NAVY'S CRITICS HIT BY CHURCHILL

Former Head of Admiralty Declares Operations Superior to Work of Foe

By International News Service.

London, Nov. 10.—Colonel Winston Spencer Churchill, who was first lord of the admiralty when the war broke out, threw down the gauntlet to the critics of his naval policy in an article in the Sunday Herald.

"History will declare," he said, "that, judging from the relative situations as a whole, British naval war knowledge and practical understanding of what could or would immediately be done at sea was in advance of anything which German naval brains or audacity could conceive.

"Always from that July (1914) night when the British grand fleet steamed swiftly through the straits of Dover to its dominating position in the Northern waters a strangle grip closed upon the German throat that was never relaxed until the fighting life of the enemy was extinct.

"It is easy in the light of after information to print the pre-war omissions, but those omissions were common on both sides.

"When, after more than 100 years, without any challenge being off-duty every man was at his post and every ship at its station."

Colonel Churchill's retort was directed at various attacks upon the navy contained in books written by admirals since the armistice. He admitted that the British admiralty was slow to realize the efficiency of submarines and the possibility that enemy submersible might enter British harbors.

"The German admiralty was slow to realize the widening opportunities for submarines. By that time measures had been taken by the British to render the submarine campaign sterile.

Niland Asks Foss to Give Ex-Bartenders Employment

The following letter has been sent to former Governor Eugene N. Foss by Representative Thomas A. Niland:

Hancock Building,
Boston, Mass.

"My Dear Sir:

"Some years ago, when a campaign was carried on to make Boston 'dry,' you volunteered, if I remember correctly, to give work to those men who would be unemployed if that campaign were successful. Boston is now 'dry,' and bids fair to remain so. Men formerly employed in the liquor business, men of the highest and finest type, come to me looking for work. They have wives and families to support.

"Can you, will you, keep your promise?

"Yours very truly
"THOMAS A. NILAND."

DEATH ADDS TO MYSTERY OF 'PHANTOM'

Girl Calls Off Wedding, But Her Family Can Find No Trace of Fiance

New York, Nov. 10.—Who is Dr. William A. Hoffman, Jr., "the phantom fiance" of Miss Sophie Loderhose of No. 1447 Dean street, Brooklyn?

This mystery is puzzling her friends and relatives today, following the recall of invitations to an elaborate church wedding which was to take place tomorrow at the Immanuel Lutheran Church, and the publication of a notice announcing the "death" of the bridegroom to be in a motor accident near French Lick Springs, Ind.

Inquiries by W. P. Phillips, brother-in-law of Miss Loderhouse, concerning the reported automobile accident, have brought word from officials there that no such accident has been reported.

He hopes to get some light on the mystery by means of a four-karat diamond ring which Miss Loderhouse says her fiance gave her. If the stone in this ring is genuine, Mr. Phillips says it will convince him that a real man of mystery is involved.

"My sister is out of town and I do not expect her back for a couple of days. She is taking a much needed rest. We have been trying to locate Dr. Hoffmann, or to ascertain if such a person ever really existed. We have not met with any success so far," said Mr. Phillips.

Rev. John A. Holthausen, pastor of the church, said Dr. Hoffmann had arranged to donate a $50,000 organ to replace the present one in the church, and that a centre aisle had been cut through the pews of the church especially for the wedding.

The refusal of the pastor to hold a special musical service for "Dr. Hoffmann" brought the case to public attention.

SEEK STRANGLER IN DEATH OF WIDOW

Massachusetts Heir of Rich Woman Believes Mrs. Anna Kirby Was Slain

Cincinnati, Nov. 10.—Prints of a strangler's fingers found on the neck of Mrs. Anna Crawford Kirby, the "millionaire widow" of the suburb of Glendale, whose body was exhumed for autopsy on complaint of relatives, have caused a grilling examination of members of her household and a statement that an arrest is imminent.

Mrs. Kirby died suddenly March 1, 1915. The body was exhumed after Clinton Kirby Seymour of Symmes road, Winchester, Mass., made known his suspicions to the police. Seymour is one of the heirs.

In his complaint, Mr. Seymour alleged that Sarah Jane Gillespie, companion and housekeeper for the murdered woman, failed to notify the relatives of the death until a week after the burial.

By her employer's will this companion received $25,000, a gold watch and chain, large diamond brooch, silver, furniture and bric-a-brac not otherwise disposed of. The $25,000 bequest was to have gone to the companions' three sisters if she did not survive her employer. Coroner A. C. Bauer ordered an inquest as soon as the result of the autopsy was made known. The autopsy showed the prints of fingers on the dead woman's throat, and a congestion of the right lung consistent with choking.

Other organs were normal, and nothing was found to explain the death except the marks of violence.

Mrs. Catherine Smith, a maid employed by Mrs. Kirby, is expected to be one of the important witnesses at the inquest. She has said in a sworn statement that she was summoned by the housekeeper, Miss Gillespie, a few minutes before Mrs. Kirby died, and found the wealthy widow almost unconscious in the bathroom.

Seymour told the authorities that while some of the servants say the woman died at 2 o'clock in the morning, others say she died at 9 o'clock at night. It is said that the body was allowed to lie for hours in the bathroom while the servants disagreed among themselves as to what to do.

Mrs. Kirby was the widow of Clinton Kirby, a lawyer and real estate dealer. He was one of the pioneer business men of Cincinnati.

Seymour was a lieutenant of marines when the war ended, and has served as judge-advocate of the General Court at the Charlestown Navy Yard.

He is a graduate of Cornell University Law School and the Harvard Graduate School of Business Administration.

CHEERS FOR LOGAN OPEN BIG NATIONAL CONVENTION OF LEGION

Chairman Lindsey pounded with his gavel for 10 minutes before he could reduce the enthusiasm to a semblance of mild interest and it took another five minutes before complete order was restored and Rev. Dr. Northrup, president emeritus of the University of Minnesota, could be introduced to make the invocation. Addresses by Governor Barnquist and Mayor Meyers followed.

When the governor referred to Theodore Roosevelt there was great applause, when he referred to the fight of the people of Massachusetts for law and order there was long and strong cheering and applause.

Governor Burnquist said that the State of Minnesota had provided $20,000,000 for the payment of a bonus to every service man from the State and he declared that he had no doubt Congress would give favorable consideration to any request the American Legion for further compensation of American service men became they would appreciate the American Legion would make no request that would be unfair. This statement was enthusiastically indorsed.

BIG FIGHT ON BONUS

The most important business to come up before the convention is the fight for $50 more pay a month for every month that was spent by the United States fighting men.

The election of a national commander comes first in the lively round. The following men are mentioned as candidates: Franklin D. Oliver, Philadelphia; Daniel J. Lowell, Boston; Colonel "Wild Bill" Donovan, New York, and Colonel Milton F. Foster, Nashville, Tenn. Colonel Lea, of Tennessee, is also being boosted by his friends from southern States.

HERBERT WITHDRAWS.

Colonel John F. J. Herbert of Worcester, first temporary commander of the Massachusetts branch of the American Legion and recent candidate for Lieutenant-Governor, has withdrawn from the field as a candidate for national commander.

This became known here today with the opening of the convention.

Herbert believes that Oliver, chairman of the national committee on arrangements, will probably win the honors as the national commander.

The Duke of Hamilton's family sold the bulk of the art objects constituting the world's greatest collection for $2,500,000 in 1882, reserving the family pictures. Now they have sold a little more than $500,000 of these at auction, the Romney being, of course, the star of the lot.

Logan, commander, particularly, he says, in view of Oliver's strong support by the New York State delegates. It is well known here also that many of the national leaders of the Legion have been vigorous workers in Oliver's interest.

LOGAN STILL IN RUNNING.

Colonel Edward L. Logan, Bay State Legion commander, is not out of the running, say his friends, who are making a concerted canvass of the delegates in his behalf. Massachusetts has the largest delegation at the convention and his backers look to the voting respect this will demand to win him victory.

At a caucus of the Massachusetts delegates it was urged to throw dignity aside and come out flat-footedly for a specified bonus. Following a spirited debate a committee was formed to present a resolution as the Bay State delegates' attitude on the bonus question. During the caucus they overwhelmingly demanded a flat bonus of $500 or a graduated scale computed according to the length of service—$1 for each day in uniform.

4,000 DELEGATES PRESENT.

There are over 4,000 delegates here and housing conditions are acute, with all rooms at the hotels taken. The Bay State delegates assert they feel at home since it has rained steadily since their arrival.

Massachusetts has the largest delegation at the convention and the largest State party. The official report places the party at 209. Of this number sixty-five are delegates.

The report credits other States with visiting parties as follows: Pennsylvania, 375; New York, 160; Iowa, 84; Illinois and Indiana, each 80; Ohio, 75; Utah, 62; Wisconsin and Michigan, 60; Kansas, Minnesota, New Jersey, 60; Texas, 62. These are the large parties and the others range from forty from Nebraska to five from Delaware.

Sailor Ryan of Newton will carry the banner for Massachusetts in the big parade tomorrow afternoon. He has been authorized by the delegation to use his own judgment as to size and style and he promises to have one that "will be a bird." Roland S. Cloake, commander of the Beverly Post, will carry Old Glory for the Massachusetts contingent in the parade.

LIVELY BANNER BEARER.

At the caucus he called attention to the fact that there was no American Flag in the parade at Worcester during the parade of the State convention delegates and he eloquently deprecated the idea of such an oversight on the part of Massachusetts men at the national convention. As a reward for his thoughtfulness Commander Logan appointed him the flag bearer.

The fight on the bonus question in the delegation came to a head in the caucus after a spirited debate. Neal Monahan of Haverhill had an idea that some delegates might try to precipitate a fight on it in the convention, and asked for an expression of the feelings of the delegates. He brought the issue to the front by moving that there be no deviation from the resolutions adopted at Worcester and that they be considered binding upon all the delegates.

Commander Logan explained that he had sought sentiment of the bonus question and had heard of two propositions that were receiving serious consideration—one was a resolution that the Legion declare against any and every kind of a bonus and the other was the payment of $1 a day for every day in the service, to be paid either in money or in government bonds.

Colonel Herbert asserted that the delegates had no right to consider the question at all, as the resolutions adopted at the State convention bound the delegates to leave the whole matter to Congress. The delegates to the national convention, he said, did not represent posts, but, rather, the expressed opinion of the State Legion. Personally, he believes there should be some sort of bonus, based upon length of service, but dignity and propriety demand that the matter be left to Congress.

INSISTED ON BONUS BOARD.

John J. Rourke disagreed with Colonel Herbert and announced that he would be guided by the mandate of his post. He suggested a committee of nine to formulate a tentative plan for a bonus for the consideration of the delegation.

Major Robert Homans of Boston said that he sympathized with the idea of a bonus based upon length of service especially since he had learned that a certain class of civilian war workers had received a generous bonus upon severing connections with the government, but the Worcester convention had taken the dignified stand of favoring the principle and leaving the question to Congress for solution. He thought that the Massachusetts delegation should stick to that stand.

Delegate Mahoney of Lynn declared that if some other State proposed a definite plan for a bonus he would be glad to vote for it and saw nothing in the Worcester resolutions that precluded him from doing so with propriety.

James A. Donovan of Lawrence made the plea that routed the forces of dignity and propriety which relied upon the Worcester State convention platform, and which held adherence to the resolutions. His eloquent appeal, coupled with the fact that at the State, sent $500 boys to the war and most of them went overseas. Many others were of foreign birth and descent, but they responded as quickly as the native sons. Since their return many of them have been unable to find work. Their former jobs are taken by those who played safe and refused to go to the front and still sacrificing. Some of the wounded are receiving but $3 a month from the government.

WORKING TO SAVE LIVES OF BABIES

Boston's leadership in the work of baby hygiene and prevention of infant mortality is indicated in the program of the American Child Hygiene Association conference at Asheville, N. C., today, tomorrow, Wednesday and Thursday. Six Boston physicians and four Boston women are assigned to leading parts in the conference. This is in the nature of a recognition of the work of the Boston Baby Hygiene Association, which aims to keep Boston's babies well." In the Boston party were Dr. Fritz B. Talbot, president of the Baby Hygiene Association; Dr. Merrill E. Champion; Dr. James Lincoln, Huntington, Dr. Robert L. DeNormandie, Dr. Richard M. Smith, Dr. J. Herbert Young, Miss Winnifred Rand, Miss Estelle M. Wheeler, Mrs. William Lowell Putnam and Miss Fanny V. Besom.

DISCUSS WAGES FOR PIECE WORK CUTTERS

Brockton, Nov. 10.—The Shoe Cutter's Commission and the wage committee of the Brockton Shoe Manufacturers' Association held a final conference today to attempt an adjustment of the cutters' piece work wage. The weekly wage for cutters was established at $42.50 some weeks ago, but attempts to settle the piece work scale have so far been unsuccessful. If the conference fails today the State Wage Board will be called upon to act.

This Laxative Is Now in Half a Million Homes

They regulate their health with Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin

Where there are women and young children and elderly people it is always well to have a mild, gentle-acting laxative like Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin handy. This is a combination of simple laxative herbs with pepsin which does all that is required in constipation and does it with safety and comfort. It is free from narcotics and may be given to babies. Half a million mothers have it in as many good American homes, and those families are healthier for it. Every drug store sells Syrup Pepsin at 60c and $1 a large bottle, the latter for those who already know its merits.

In spite of the fact that Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin is the largest selling liquid laxative in the world, there being over 6 million bottles sold each year, many who need its benefits have not yet used it. If you have not, send your name and address for a free trial bottle to Dr. W. B. Caldwell, 511 Washington St., Monticello, Illinois.

GRILL WOMAN IN OTTERSON MURDER

Wife of Slain Man's Brother Asked About Relations With Victim

learn if there was any possible motive that would lead toward the theory that the murder was not the work of auto bandits, but of a person or persons nearer home.

Otterson was closely questioned as to his relations with the woman he made his wife, as to the causes of the frequent quarrels between them, and as to the feeling that existed between his wife and his brother.

Following the questioning of Howard, Mr. and Mrs. John I. Otterson, parents of the murdered man, were briefly questioned, and then Mrs. Howard Otterson was put through a hard grilling.

RUMORS OF AN ARREST.

Following the examination of the Otterson family the rumor of an immediate arrest, which has been the current trend of neighborhood gossip, gained greater circulation.

There are many who refuse to believe the crime was the work of auto bandits. The police, while admitting that an important arrest is likely soon, refuse to give details.

Mrs. Howard Otterson, sister-in-law of the murdered man, who, according to her own story, was herself throttled and gagged by one of the two bandits, made her first public appearance at the funeral since the tragedy.

Leaning on the arm of her husband, the older brother of Maurice, pale, and her neck swathed where the vega's fingers had left their imprint, she tottered through the line of soldiers, from the house to the auto, that brought her to the cemetery.

The only story she has told has remained unshaken.

WERE ALONE IN HOUSE.

A few minutes before 3 o'clock on Thursday night she and Maurice were alone in the house. The elder Otterson and Howard had gone to Manchester, where Maurice and Mrs. Howard were to meet them, and go to the theatre.

While awaiting for Maurice to dress she started out the back door to go to the barn, where the watchdog was tied, to loose him that he might guard the house while the family was away. As soon as she opened the door a man leaped upon her, choked her so that she was unable to cry out, and threw her to the floor. He then pulled a sweater over her head.

Knowing that there were many firearms in the house the husband is traveling salesman for a firearms concern) she was between hope and fear until a man came near her again, said something to his companion, who still kept his choking grip upon her, and both ran.

Before she could release herself from the strangling sweater, she heard the noise of the machine in which the bandits apparently made their escape. She then summoned her nearest neighbors, the Stewarts, who found Maurice dead, and called Dr. Freeman.

SEEK CREW OF 50 FROM LOST VESSEL

U. S. Shipping Board Steamer Polar Land Wrecked and Four Others in Distress

Loss of the United States Shipping Board steamer Polar Land, with the crew of fifty men in lifeboats being sought, four other steamships in distress, a schooner wrecked off Portland, Me., and the wreckage of another schooner washed ashore at Scituate, bore evidence today of several sea tragedies.

So far as is known, Third Mate William F. Ryan, nineteen, was the only Boston boy on the Polar Land. "We're so used to accidents in our family that we never worry till all the facts are at hand," said Bernard F. Ryan, father of the boy, who is employed at the Wadsworth estate, No. 1600 Beacon street, Brookline. I had a letter from my son, from Cape Breton, dated November 10," he continued.

"My son enlisted in the navy the day war was declared, although only sixteen years old, was assigned to the South Carolina, where he spent two years, after which he was sent to the Shipping Board School at the Massachusetts Institute of Technology, from which he just graduated. My boy was born in Boston, but I was at sea off the Newfoundland coast for five years. My father was drowned up there while seal hunting."

A wireless message received at the Naval Radio Station here told of the plight of the Polar Land. A call for help was intercepted by the high-powered naval wireless station at Otter Cliffs, Maine, and was relayed to Boston.

A message from the U. S. S. Bellingham also said the Polar Land was in need of assistance. Her position was given as latitude 44.35 north and longitude 57.50 west, a point about 220 miles east of Halifax, N. S.

Another wireless said that steamship Kanawha had gone to the Polar Land, but that the later had foundered. The rescue ship began a search for the fifty men from the Polar Land who had put off in lifeboats.

The Greek steamship Plates, the Navy Yard wireless heard, was ashore on Cape Sable. The British steamship Ureleston was reported in distress on the Nova Scotia coast, and the steamship Carlton Hall, bound for Portland, Me., was reported in distress.

The Telemachus, a Canadian coal vessel, sent out a call for help from the vicinity of Cape Breton, and a fourth steamship off the Nova Scotia coast, who did not give her name, said she, too, was in need of assistance.

Wreckage of a schooner found float, ing off Ragged Island, Portland, Me., by fishermen, is believed to be part of a three-master that went to pieces off the ledges during the recent gale. The crew is supposed to have perished to a man. Coast guardsmen today were searching for the bodies. The name of the wrecked craft is unknown.

NEARLY 100 NAVAL VESSELS FOR SALE

Washington, Nov. 10.—The Navy Department, which has already disposed of nearly 100 vessels, need only its time of war, is putting another collection on sale by advertisement. This collection includes a number of submarine chasers, yachts, twenty-two obsolete destroyers and gunboats.

Weak, Thin, Nervous People Should Take Bitro-Phosphate

What It Is And How It Increases Weight, Strength and Nerve-Force.

Judging from the countless preparations and treatments which are continually being advertised to create flesh, there must be many flesh-less, developing arms and necks, and replacing ugly hollows and angles by the normal lines of health and beauty, there are evidently thousands of people who are thin and wasted and wished the family for their excessive thinness.

Thinness and weakness are often due to starved nerves. Our bodies need more phosphate than is contained in modern foods. Physician states there is nothing that will supply this deficiency so well as the organic phosphate known among druggists as bitro-phosphate, which is unexcelled and is sold by most all druggists under a guarantee of satisfaction or money back.

By feeding the nerves directly and by supplying the body with the elements which prevent fatigue, this phosphate often adds pounds of solid flesh to form in a surprisingly short time. The increase in weight is frequently truly astonishing.

Increase in weight also carries with it a general improvement in the health. Nervousness, indigestion and lack of energy, which always accompany excessive thinness, should soon disappear, and your weighing daily shows a slow with the bloom of perfect health.

CAUTION—While Bitro-Phosphate is recommended for the relief of nervousness, potential debility and thinness, those who do not desire to put on flesh should use extra care in avoiding fat-producing foods.—Advertisement.

Rheumatism Relief—25c.

Nature's Remedy' (NR Tablets), Are Helping Thousands Who Tried Expensive Things Without Result. It's Guaranteed.

There are three vital processes of human existence—the digestion of food, the extraction of nourishment from it and the elimination of waste.

Poor digestion and assimilation means failure to digest full nourishment from food and that in turn often means impoverished blood, weakness, anemia, etc. Poor elimination means an accumulation of waste matter which poisons the body, lowers vitality, decreases the power of resistance to disease and leads to the development of many serious ills.

Rheumatism—due to some interference with the process of elimination, failure to get rid of certain body poisons—cannot be expected to yield to any medicine that fails to correct the condition responsible for it. Could any reasonable person expect to rid himself of rheumatic pain as long as rheumatic poison is allowed to remain in the body.

Think of this. It explains the success of Nature's Remedy (NR Tablets) in so many cases where other medicines have failed. Thousands are using NR Tablets every day and getting relief. Why don't you or ten times as much for temporary things? A 25c box of Nature's Remedy (NR Tablets), containing enough to last twenty-five days—must help you, must give you prompt relief and satisfactory benefit or it costs you nothing.

Nature's Remedy is not only for the relief of rheumatism. It improves digestion, tones the liver, regulates kidney and bowel action, improves the blood and cleanses the system. You've tried the expensive medicines and doctor's now make the real test. You'll get results this time. Just try it. The Quick Way to Stop a Cough

This home-made syrup does the work in a hurry. Easily prepared, and saves about $2.

You might be surprised to know that the best thing you can use for a severe cough is a remedy which is easily prepared at home in just a few moments. It's cheap, but for prompt results it beats anything else you ever tried. Usually stops the ordinary cough or chest cold in 24 hours. Tastes pleasant, even children like it—and it is pure and good.

Pour 2½ ounces of Pinex in a pint bottle; then fill up with plain granulated sugar syrup. Or use clarified molasses, honey or corn syrup, instead of sugar syrup, if desired. Thus you make a full pint—a family supply—but costing no more than a small bottle of ready-made cough syrup.

And as a cough medicine, there is really nothing better to be had at any price. It goes right to the spot and gives quick, lasting relief. It promptly heals the inflamed membranes that line the throat and air passages, stops the annoying throat tickle, loosens the phlegm and soon your cough stops entirely. Splendid for bronchitis, croup, hoarseness and bronchial asthma.

To avoid disappointment ask your druggist for "2½ ounces of Pinex" with directions, and don't accept anything else. Guaranteed to give absolute satisfaction or money refunded. The Pinex Co., Ft. Wayne, Ind.—Advertisement.

ENGLISH SPLIT OVER RUSSIAN WAR MOVE

Papers Disagree as to Opening Negotiations with Soviet Government

London, Nov. 10.—Newspaper opinion was divided today on that portion of Premier Lloyd George's Guild Hall speech Saturday which indicated that negotiations might soon be opened with the Soviet government of Russia.

The Daily Mail and the Times, both owned by Lord Northcliffe attacked the speech bitterly. The Times declared that Great Britain must continue to support the leaders of the Anti-Bolshevik forces in Russia.

The Daily Express and the Daily Telegraph expressed the view that it probably would be better to let Russia work out her own salvation without allied intervention.

The Daily Herald, organ of the Labor party, took the attitude that Premier Lloyd George evidently accepted Nicholai Lenine's terms. "This," said the Daily Herald, "is now the single hope for peace."

CHILD LABOR LAW BARS BOYS IN VATICAN CHOIR

Cannot Permit Them to Sing in Boston Concert on November 30

The return of the great Vatican Choir for a farewell concert in Boston is imperilled by the invoking of the child labor law which has prevented so many famous dramatic attractions from coming to this city and which now bars the Roman singers.

In the Vatican Choir are eight boys under fourteen years of age. The choir came to Boston on September 27, immediately after landing in America, and before the authorities or the local management knew that it contained boys under the legal age.

Mechanics Hall has been booked for a return concert on Sunday evening, November 30, but the management has been compelled to notify the choir that under the law the boys cannot be permitted to sing.

As the eight boys are in the soprano section of the choir and they include Orlando Picci, the best soprano in the Sistine Chapel choir, it is obvious that the choir will be wrecked without them. A telegram to J. J. McCarthy, New York representative of the St. Gregory Society, explaining the situation, drew the following reply.

"Impossible to send choir unless it is complete. If Massachusetts takes the ungracious and unfriendly attitude of keeping out these representatives of the greatest institution in the world the responsibility is on her. Isn't there some way in which this law can be suspended in view of the unusual character of the organization, the fact that its work is the introduction to America of the immortal music of the Vatican?"

ARMY STORES WILL BE OPEN ARMISTICE DAY

The army retail stores in South Boston will remain open tomorrow, Armistice Day. Colonel E. L. Glasgow said today that he had no authority from Washington to close them, notwithstanding the petitions circulated by the hundreds of employes, who desire a holiday.

Former service men will be given passes for the day in cases where their services can be spared.

It was announced today that Boston leads the country in sales of surplus army goods, both in daily salesand totals. A letter of commendation was received by Colonel Glasgow from E. C. Morse, national director of sales, praising the work of department heads and the methods of distribution used here. Saturday's sales were the largest of any day yet, showing a total of $21,597.89 in the cash and carry department and $11,319.58 through the mail order department.

Prices remained the same today. Corrugated ash cans were crossed off the list of articles in stock.

LAUNCH SUBMARINE S-5 AT PORTSMOUTH

Portsmouth, Nov. 10.—The S-5, the fifth submarine to be constructed at the Navy Yard here since the entrance of the United States into the World War, was launched today before a large gathering of naval officers and civilians. Mrs. Glenn S. Burrell, daughter of Rear Admiral Clifford J. Boush, U. S. N., and wife of Civil Engineer Glenn S. Burrell, U. S. N., was the sponsor. The dimensions of the craft are: Length, 231 feet; beam, 21 feet; draft, 15 feet; surface displacement, 870 tons. The boat will have a surface speed of 15 knots an hour, and 12½ knots when submerged.

The Logic of Lodge

The Wisdom of Wilson

I'VE read Article X but I don't know what it means. I wish the statesmen would talk like business men and say something the common man can understand.

Lodge thinks Wilson will get us in Dutch. Wilson accuses Lodge of disturbing the Peace. Lodge says Wilson is reading between the lines. Wilson claims Lodge is misinterpreting this clause.

Just as a plain, ordinary citizen, born in U. S. A., I should like to know if a Committee in Geneva can send my boy to Shantung to fight the Japs—if they don't get out of China, or give him a job as a policeman in Turkey—if they begin "cutting up".

If They Can, I'm for Lodge
If They Can't, I'm for Wilson

While this discussion is going on, the H. C. L. is going up. Let's stop them both. If you'll straighten out Article X, I'll flatten out the H. C. L.

PRICES DECLINE ON BOSTON EXCHANGE

Local Market Follows New York Closely During the Forenoon

The Boston market weakened at the outset and prices on the local exchange ranged further before showing any signs of a rally. It reacted again in the second hour, following New York quite closely in movement. Gray & Davis and Simms Magneto were the most active issues and were strong all the morning. Gray & Davis sold at its record high-est price and Simms at its highest since its listing on this exchange. Trading in the shares of the Boston Mexican Petroleum Trustees began today, there being 500,052 ordinary shares without nominal or par value admitted to this list. This issue opened at 4¾.

Among stocks to recede a point or more during the morning were New Haven, Punta Alegre, United Drug and Swift & Co., losses to about fractional losses included East Butte, North Butte, Calumet & Arizona, Hudson, National Leather, Carson Hill, Parish & Bingham, Root & Van Dervoort, Edison, Highcourt, Libby and Swift International.

Among strong stocks were United Shoe, West End, Highcourt, Maryland Cement preferred, Walworth, Waldorf and Edison, they advancing from fractions to a point.

BOSTON FINANCIAL NOTES.

October copper production by United Verde Extension was 3,700,882 pounds, compared with 3,247,218 pounds, and 2,270,452 for August.

Refined copper shipments from Michigan by water during October totalled 14,490,000 pounds, the best showing in months.

During the September quarter North Butte's output was 3,920,139 pounds of copper, 165,802 ounces of silver and 259,165 ounces of gold.

During the first nine months of 1919 Island Creek Coal earnings amounted to $736,830 after depreciation and taxes, or only $24,000 less than the full year's dividend requirements at the rate of $6 per share on preferred stock and $4 per share on common.

TRADING BRISK AND DECLINE GENERAL

By W. H. ROSS,
Financial Editor.

Stocks were weak in New York at noon, having failed to show strength during the morning. At times there had been attempts at a rally but they were feeble. The occasional was general, there being but few stocks to make or retain gains. The opening call money rate was 12 per cent. The market was very active, first hour transactions totalling almost half a million shares Liquidation featured trading. Bears were aggressive from the start.

Among issues to show the largest losses during the morning were General Motors, Studebaker, Baldwin, Republic Steel, Bethlehem B, American Beet, American Woolen common, Atlantic Gulf, International Paper, Retail, strong and Worthington Pump. They were off from two to nine points at their lowest, General Motors being the weakest.

RECESSIONAL AT OPENING.

Prices receded at the opening, most of the over-Sunday orders receiving due consideration. The prevailing mandates to sell, while the floor traders took the bear side and stocks were in abundance. The tightly bare operated for a decline comprises fears of the Peace Treaty in the Senate, high money rates and the labor situation. Wall Street favored the League covenant without reservations, there is no sign of a relaxation of money rates, and the country's industries are threatened by the strike of coal miners. Last week was a period of stock market liquidation, and the process was continued this morning. At the start declines ranged from fractions to more than two points, and prices fell further within half an hour. All classes of stocks were weak, steels, equipment, oils and motors being conspicuous in this respect. Industrial Alcohol was strong; began with a small loss, but developed strength quickly, showing almost four points' gain within an hour. But losses to advance all had during that period were very few.

BANK STATEMENT GOOD.

Toward the end of an hour there was a rally and American International, U. S. Rubber, Transcontinent Oil and Mexican Petroleum were up a point or more. U. S. Steel recovered its loss and showed a small gain. The largest advance was by Crucible, while General Electric came next. In the second hour the market bordered on irregularity.

The New York bank statement of Saturday was the most satisfactory report made by clearing house members in a point or more. U. S. Steel recovered its loss and showed a small gain. But losses to advance all had during that period were very few.

MISSING EAST BOSTON GIRL WAS IN NEW YORK

Marion Norton, seventeen-year-old East Boston girl, who disappeared from her home Oct. 27, has been found and has been brought back to this city by Detective J. P. Johnson.

Johnson, after a five-day search, finally located Miss Norton in a lodging house on West Fifty-third street, New York city. The girl, when confronted by the detective she refused to tell of her motive for leaving home, other than because she "just wanted to see the big city." Miss Norton's home is at No. 20 Saratoga street.

Science Explains Saliva

See the common sense of it!

Along about the time that Nature invented teeth, she realized that food would lodge between them and decay, forming destructive products which would ruin tooth enamel. So Nature, in her direct, practical way, arranged for a constant flow of alkaline saliva which would neutralize the poisons of food decay and protect the teeth.

It has taken science some twenty centuries to discover the relation of saliva to teeth. Even now some dentifrices actually defeat Nature's protective method by paralyzing the salivary glands and retarding the flow of saliva, exposing teeth to the unchecked ravages of the bacteria of food decay.

Dental science now recognizes that a dentifrice must contain no drugs which will lessen the flow of saliva; and to be effective it must exert a stimulating effect on the salivary glands, thus increasing the flow and alkalinity of saliva.

We have devoted several years of laboratory research and experimenting to perfect a scientific, effective dentifrice. A number of the leaders of the dental profession have aided us by suggestions and tests.

On the contrary, since it contains a mild, beneficial fruit acid which exerts a positive stimulating influence on the salivary glands, it increases the flow and alkalinity of saliva for a considerable time after using.

Mennen's is right simply because it aids Nature instead of violating her laws. It cleans teeth and then helps Nature to keep them clean and safe from dangerous substances.

Mennen's is a wonderful cleansing agent. Try it! Note how white your teeth are—how free from tartar; for Mennen's emulsifies and breaks down tartar formations and prevents their reforming. Note how the saliva flows afterwards.

Mennen's has a 20% content of alcohol which keeps gums in the pink of condition and has the virtue of an antiseptic mouth wash.

Mennen Cream Dentifrice costs 35 cents. It is so concentrated that a tiny bit is sufficient, so a tube lasts a long time.

Try one tube.

NOW UP TO NEW HAMPSHIRE TO AVENGE DR. DEAN

By BERT FORD.

With the elimination of Mrs. Dean by alienists and others, followed by her death, it now becomes the duty of the county and State authorities to run down and punish the murderers of Dr. Dean. With the curtain drawn on the Dean household, evidence implicating others has increased in magnitude and should be acted upon.

The County and State authorities say that the Dean case is open and that they will welcome any new evidence. They say that the evidence at hand is not sufficient to warrant the arrest or to lodge for a conviction.

But they are not now spending a single dollar or making the slightest effort to track the assassins or to unearth new evidence themselves.

So far as the County and State officials are concerned, the Dean case is pigeon-holed. The State of New Hampshire ought to exert itself a little more toward the solution of a murder that is international in its ramifications.

Murderers seldom give themselves up, nor is it the duty or function of civilians to go to trouble or expense to produce evidence, that is an official responsibility, but absolutely nothing is being done along that line at the present time in the Dean mystery.

In connection with the evidence which tends to implicate two suspects, the County and State officials appear to take the stand that unless they have first hand or direct evidence, it is futile for them to proceed.

ERRONEOUS THEORY.

This is an error and contrary to general practice. Every lawyer knows that the majority of homicides are proven by circumstantial evidence. People do not commit murder in the daylight or in the presence of witnesses, as a rule.

There have been killings in crowded places in the heat of passion, but most murders are committed in seclusion, or in the dark, as was that of Dr. Dean, and it is only by circumstances that the chain of evidence can be welded sufficiently to ensnare the suspects.

If all the clews and circumstances and shadings involving German activities in that region, the signal lights, the use of enemy funds, the operations of certain persons, the conflicting statements made and the very clear trail that appears following the murder are properly co-ordinated and presented to a grand jury and a court, convictions could be secured, in the opinion of Federal agents and others who have worked on the case.

The selectmen and the majority of the inhabitants of East Jaffrey declare that the grand jury hearing at Keene which they say was reluctantly called in April, nine months after the murder, was a "whitewash."

They say that a great many witnesses who had valuable evidence were not called and that witnesses with important testimony were not permitted to tell their full stories.

They demand that another and more sweeping grand jury inquiry be conducted and that a change of venue be granted so that the proceedings may be held in another county.

They say that the selectmen and the Federal agents requested that an attorney representing the United States Department of Justice be allowed to attend the grand jury session. This request was denied by Judge Kivel on the grounds that indictments were returned it would give the counsel for the defendants opportunity to upset the proceedings by claiming that they were illegal.

The charges made by the selectmen and others are very grave, but they claim that they can prove them. They say evidence was whitewashed.

County Solicitor Roy M. Pickard denies these allegations and is not a bit disturbed by them. He said:

CALLS CHARGES "SILLY."

"Stories that the Grand Jury of Cheshire County was influenced, are in line with other silly charges in this case. It is absurd to claim that anybody could exercise so great a power over so many citizens. The Grand Jury proceedings in the Dean case were judicially and carefully conducted along regular lines.

"The rights of every person were safeguarded and only facts which could be interpreted as legal evidence were considered. We naturally could not deal with rumors or country gossip.

"Everything connected with this case has been conscientiously weighed and acted upon. The county officials have no apologies to make. The case is not dead by any means. Both Attorney-General Young and myself are eager to solve it and to act upon any evidence offered.

"We have nothing in our possession now which would warrant action against any suspect."

The citizens of East Jaffrey clamored for a Grand Jury hearing for months before a special session was finally called in April. In February seven months after the murder, a petition was circulated which read as follows:

"We, the undersigned citizens of Jaffrey, hereby respectfully request the proper Federal and State authorities to conduct a searching and complete judicial investigation into the crime which resulted in the death of William K. Dean, at Jaffrey, August 13, 1918, to the end that, if possible, the guilty parties may be found and any unjust suspicion be allayed."

This petition was signed by several hundred citizens in short order. It caused a local sensation and was followed by a stormy session of the Board of Trade, at which many charges were denied. It was one of the most turbulent sessions in the history of the town. A sample of the dialogue during the most heated moments is shown in the following fragment.

"If this is one of the big guns, let him shoot," thundered a voice when several were trying to get the floor.

"I ain't a big gun, I'm only a pistol, but I'm going to fire!" exclaimed the speaker, "and I don't care who is hit."

George H. Duncan, president of the Jaffrey Board of Trade, wrote lengthy letters to County Solicitor Pickard summarizing the charges made in open meeting, and it was as a result of this correspondence that Pickard consented to appear before a later meeting, where DeKerlor, the psychologist-detective from New York was also a speaker.

At that time County Solicitor Pickard suggested to President Duncan that a coroner's inquest would be more advisable than a Grand Jury hearing. Mr. Pickard stated that he did not think that "there was the slightest excuse for a Grand Jury investigation at this time. It would not do what is expected of it, and the functions of a Grand Jury is, I think, misunderstood. That, at least, is my idea, substantiated by some study of Grand Jury practice in New Hampshire."

Finally there was a change of the official mind as to Grand Jury proceedings and after a lapse of nine months, a special session of the Cheshire County Grand Jury was called. The deliberations of that body began in Keene, the county seat, on April 11, and dragged along until April 29.

GRAND JURY STATEMENT.

Stephen A. Bullock was foreman of the Grand Jury and Oscar E. Bourne was clerk. The Grand Jury declined to make any finding other than to issue this statement; the only report made public, signed by the foreman and clerk:

"The grand jurors announce that upon full consideration of all the evidence presented before them, they find that William K. Dean of East Jaffrey came to his death at midnight, August 13, 1918, at the hands of a person or persons unknown to them."

It cost more than $1,500 and took nearly three weeks to come to this conclusion that Dr. Dean was murdered. Such a finding could have been made at a post-mortem inquest within a day or two after the crime, and that is what is done in most cases.

Every man, woman and child in East Jaffrey knew on the first day that it would have been physically impossible for Dr. Dean to have hit himself upon the head, choked himself with a halter, wrapped a horse-blanket around his head, placed a 27½-pound rock on that, pull a bag sack down over his turbaned head, fasten the sack with twine to his belt loops, tie his hands, knees and ankles, jump into a cistern and then pull the cover on after him.

DO YOUR CHRISTMAS SHOPPING NOW

The Advantages of Early Christmas Shopping

A YEAR ago, when the Government was in the midst of its campaign to promote early Christmas shopping, for purely patriotic and economic reasons, the armistice was declared, and what threatened to be the most severe of war Christmases was quickly transformed into a glorious victory Christmas. But many people who had already been persuaded to adopt the early Christmas Shopping practice, continued, and learned by experience the exceptional advantages of doing the bulk of one's Christmas gift buying during the month of November.

This year the Jordan Marsh Company offers to its patrons uncommonly attractive inducements for November Christmas Shopping.

First and foremost there is the enormous quantity of high-grade merchandise we have assembled, much of it ideal for gift purposes, in that it provides gifts that are not only practical and useful, but beautiful and distinctive as well. We now have, for the first time since the holiday season of 1914, merchandise from markets closed to us during the war. The full fruits of the purchasing trips which nineteen of our own house buyers have taken during the year 1919 are now apparent all over this great store. Our stocks are now particularly rich in articles belonging to that important class of merchandise usually designated as "novelties," and including things rare, unusual, picturesque, curious or difficult to obtain—the class of merchandise which has its most potent appeal and its widest value during the gift buying season.

The greater satisfaction of choosing gifts leisurely from unbroken assortments, during November when the store is much less crowded and better service is possible, cannot be too strongly emphasized. Hurried last minute buying, with its nerve wracking strain and inevitable disappointments, in the light of our war taught efficiency and regard for system, is coming to be relegated to the domain of old-fashioned things which we have outgrown.

Jordan Marsh Company has already announced that its Customers may defer payment for November purchases until January. We invite all of our Charge Customers to avail themselves of this privilege of the yuletide season. The convenience of a Charge Account here, and of Jordan Marsh service, is especially worth while now during the holiday season, when our every effort is directed to the task of making November Chistmas shopping agreeable and advantageous to our patrons. We respectfully solicit their co-operation in making this year's gift shopping the most satisfactory and the least tedious in our mutual experience.

MEAT CAUSE OF KIDNEY TROUBLE

Take a glass of Salts if your Back hurts or Bladder bothers —Meat forms uric acid.

If you must have your meat every day, eat it, but flush your kidneys with salts occasionally, says a noted authority who tells us that meat forms uric acid which almost paralyzes the kidneys in their efforts to expel it from the blood. They become sluggish and weaken, then you suffer with a dull misery in the kidney region, sharp pains in the back or sick headache, dizziness, your stomach sours, tongue is coated and when the weather is bad you have rheumatic twinges. The urine gets cloudy, full of sediment, the channels often get sore and irritated, obliging you to seek relief two or three times during the night.

To neutralize these irritating acids, to cleanse the kidneys and flush off the body's urinous waste, get four ounces of Jad Salts from any pharmacy here; take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast for a few days and your kidneys will then act fine. This famous salts is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia, and has been used for generations to flush and stimulate sluggish kidneys, also to neutralize the acids in urine, so it no longer irritates, thus ending bladder weakness.

LEGION TO LEAD ARMISTICE DAY CELEBRATION

Greater Boston to Observe the First Anniversary With Various Festivities

Victory balls, street parades, memorial services, banquets and other festivities tomorrow will mark the first anniversary of Armistice Day in Greater Boston, with the American Legion playing in general the role of host and master of ceremonies. The celebration will be world-wide, with fitting exercises in every State in the Union and every country of the victorious allies. War veterans, not only of the World War, but of the Civil and Spanish wars as well, will bear a part in the observance of that famous "eleventh hour of the eleventh day of the eleventh month" when the last shots of the great conflict were fired.

Hand in hand with this celebration will be that commemorating the "Cape Cod Compact," on board the Mayflower in Provincetown harbor 299 years ago. While that act is overshadowed by the more recent and far-reaching event, historic societies will observe it, and Provincetown will have a special celebration of its own.

Tomorrow marks also the time limit when service men may become charter members of the American Legion. Officers and others members of the legion are working hard today to enroll a record membership.

CHURCHES TO TAKE PART.

In the churches will be held memorial services for the heroic dead. At St. Paul's Cathedral a special service will take place at noon, with an address by Bishop Lawrence, appropriate music and prayers.

Victory balls will be given at the Cambridge Armory on Massachusetts avenue, under the auspices of Roxbury Post No. 44, American Legion; at the Copley-Plaza, where guests prominent socially in many cities, including Miss Anne Morgan of New York, will assemble; and at West Newton Armory, under the auspices of Newton Post, American Legion.

The proceeds of the Copley-Plaza ball will go toward the aid of devastated France.

The affair at the South Armory promises to be one of the most brilliant that Boston has seen in many years. General Clarence R. Edwards will lead the grand march, which is to begin at 9 p. m., following a band concert. Many other military leaders will be guests of honor, and all ex-service men will be in uniform. The proceeds will be used for a permanent home of the post. More than $1,000 has been spent in preparations, and more than 3,100 tickets have been sold.

TO REMEMBER DEAD.

In the forenoon, the post will hold memorial services for its members who fell in France. The exercises will take place in the Dudley Theatre.

Newton Post of the American Legion will be presented with State and national colors at the Armistice ball in the West Newton Armory. The State flag will be given by Charles Ward Post No. 61, G. A. R., and the American emblem by the Newton Lodge of Elks. Mayor Edwin O. Childs will make the presentation.

The ball will be one of the largest social affairs in Newton in recent years.

Arlington Post No. 39, Arlington Legion, will attend a solemn high mass at 9 a. m. at St. Agnes' Church. At an open meeting in Robbins Memorial Hall at 8 p. m. President Lemuel H. Corlin of Boston University and others will speak.

At Lexington the celebration will be directed by Stanley Hill Post No. 38. In the forenoon exercises will take place at the famous old battle green, where buglers will sound "Taps" for the dead and a squad will fire three volleys. In the evening the post will give its annual dance in the Town Hall.

Malden will stage a celebration, the chief feature of which will be a parade to include every ex-service man, civic and patriotic organization in the city. The parade will begin at 10 a. m. and end at 2 p. m., with a review by city officials at Carter Field.

SHEPARD STORE ADOPTS GOVERNMENTAL SYSTEM

The United States governmental system has been introduced in the Shepard Norwell Company, the plan having been announced in an open letter by John Shepard, Jr., president of the company.

Mr. Shepard announced that he wished to retain the present board of directors as a cabinet. The heads of departments will compose what will be termed the "Senate," while employes from every department will be elected to what will be known as "the House of Representatives."

Full power of decisions as to the business of the company will remain with Mr. Shepard, but he announces that all his decisions will incline toward the suggestion made by the majority of the "House" and "Senate." At intervals the "House" and "Senate" will be called into conference on every subject regarding the welfare of the store. Committees will be appointed to investigate and report any suggestion as to the betterment of the business. When any bill has been passed by the "House" and "Senate" it goes to President Shepard as freely as any motion now goes to President Wilson.

This is the first time in the history of the United States that a large department store has adopted such a democratic form of business operation.

SAY STRIKERS ATTEMPTED TO STONE POLICE

Somerville Officers Arrest Four Men Who Are Held for Trial

Four striking employes of the Somerville packing plants were arrested today following an alleged attempt to stone members of the Somerville police force. Sergeant Kinney and four other policemen said that as they were passing Washington street and Somerville avenue, a group of men picked up rocks from the street and prepared to hurl them at the automobile.

The car was stopped and four men were seized, who gave their names as John Gallon, Medford street; James Kostaras, Somerville avenue; John Thomas, Linwood street; and Bassil Shehane, Poplar street, all of Somerville.

When arraigned in Somerville court on the charge of disorderly conduct, all pleaded not guilty and were held in $100 each for hearing Thursday. Six other strikers are scheduled to come before the court on that day.

Frank Lukehi, Webster avenue, Somerville, charged with loitering; Thomas F. Callinan, Columbia street, Somerville, charged with disorderly conduct, and Cosmo Bivulio, Harding street, Cambridge, accused of throwing a missile, will appear for sentence, having been found guilty of the charges against them. Three others also are to be tried.

AMERICAN SPORT SECTION

MANY BAY STATE GOLFERS TO PLAY AT METACOMET

By ROBERT E. HARLOW.

Open golf tournaments have hung on with marvelous tenacity in this Northern climate this Fall, but what is undoubtedly the last call will be issued Armistice Day morning at the first tee at the Metacomet Golf Club in Rumford, R. I.

The Metacomet golfers, and it would be difficult to find any who are more enthusiastic or better entertainers, are going to give a party tomorrow for professionals and amateurs, with their new eighteen-hole course as the scene of action.

Massachusetts will be well represented. So will Providence, and the Rhode Island players will have added strength in the presence of a number of the foremost professional golfers from New York, who are paired with the local amateurs.

Play will be from scratch, with $300 or more to be divided among the winning professionals and gifts for the amateurs. It is likely that the professional on the winning team will go away with $75 and that at least four other professionals will finish in the money.

NO INDIVIDUAL PRIZES.

The club will not award prizes for individual scores by professionals or amateurs, as they realize that it would require a lot of time for each player to hole out at every green, even if he had no chance of being in the best ball play. The officers are anxious to clear the field before dark.

A number of golfers practiced Sunday at Metacomet, while others were out there today. For golfers who are not going to Providence by automobile there are adequate train connections tonight and Tuesday morning. Tonight express trains leave South Station at 7.30 and 12.10 o'clock and locals at 5 and 11 o'clock. Tuesday morning locals leave at 5.11, 6.22 and 7.39 o'clock. The Metacomet golfers will meet the early morning trains Tuesday in automobiles.

The Massachusetts State golf team defeated Rhode Island in the interState matches and Providence golfers did not land in the prize list in the amateur-professional tournament at Wollaston last Monday. They hope to do better against Massachusetts competition tomorrow, and have made up a number of strong pairs to battle with the Massachusetts delegation.

IN EXCEPTIONAL SHAPE.

The Providence Journal says: "While the Metacomet course is not by any means completed it is in exceptionally good shape, considering the short length of time it has been in existence."

John A. Gammons and George Frothingham is a formidable pair entered. Others are George H. Collett and Alex Smith of New York; Harry Farnsworth and Eddie Lowe, Metacomet amateur and professional; Ralph Rooke and Hugh Gordon, James Kenyon and Charles Anderson is from New York. Other Rhode Island professionals will be on hand with the classiest amateurs they can find.

Just how strong a delegation Massachusetts will send depends upon weather conditions. If these are right it would not be surprising if thirty players went down from Boston, with this state's link unveiled from Worcester and from clubs near the State line.

STRONG BAY STATE PAIRS.

Francis Ouimet and George Bowden and Mike Brady and George Murphy, pairs capable of furnishing a very low best ball, will play Bert Nicol and H. H. Marden of Belmont Spring, who did well at Wollaston, are looked for and it would be a shame if Fred Miley and Ray Porter, the genial Homestead combination that fooled everybody by winning first at Wollaston, did not show.

Porter is certainly anxious to play in stiff competition, as following the victory at Wollaston he shipped:

"Please, will someone give me Walter Hagen's address."

Brice S. Evans has been in Providence a number of days trying out the course, as has Tom Goss, the Old Newbury professional.

H. A. Ross of Metacomet and Oak Bluffs, who has had plenty of experience in conducting open tournaments, will have charge. He has invited all his Oak Bluffs and Metacomet friends to take part and extended an invitation to the golf lovers of Rhode Island to step up and see how the big fellows hit the ball.

Post entries will be allowed.

Metacomet Course Is in Fine Condition for Tomorrow's Tournament

Providence, Nov. 10.—While the regular course at Metacomet is not quite finished, the one over which the players will go in the tournament tomorrow, except at the fourteenth and seventeenth holes, the lay-out is permanent. The course is being built under the direction of Willie Park and has plenty of natural hazards along the fairways, and traps at the greens.

The distance and pars for the holes as they will be played tomorrow:

Hole.	Distance.	Par.
First	343 yards	4
Second	125 yards	3
Third	365 yards	4
Fourth	340 yards	4
Fifth	185 yards	3
Sixth	420 yards	4
Seventh	135 yards	3
Eighth	375 yards	4
Ninth	522 yards	5
Out	3115 yards	38
Tenth	140 yards	3
Eleventh	400 yards	4
Twelfth	160 yards	3
Thirteenth	410 yards	4
Fourteenth	230 yards	4
Fifteenth	530 yards	5
Sixteenth	360 yards	4
Seventeenth	365 yards	4
Eighteenth	350 yards	4
In	3040 yards	35
Total	6910 yards	73

The record for this course is 72 and was made by Jim Hendry, the New Haven professional.

Golfer Closed Eyes and Holed 100- Yard Shot

By WALTER C. HAGEN,
Open Golf Champion.

Stories of freak golf shots never fail to get an audience when there are golfers around. Usually these freak shots are laid at the door of the best players, but there are possibly more wonderful shots of a freakish nature made by the duffer, because there are so many more duffers in this world than there are stars.

When a pro or a low handicap golfer makes one of those so-called phenomenal shots, there is usually less of the element of luck in it than when the same sort of a shot is made by a duffer. The latters efforts are the results of an accident very often, but it does not take away from the interest in the shot itself and the player who makes it can tell about it over and over with just as much pride as if he were a champion and in the habit of making these sensational shots when the occasion demanded.

Holes in one are common these days and no longer cause great comment. The player making a "one" is lucky to get his name in the paper unless there is something of a freakish nature in the shot. Dr. C. O. Niesley of Great Neck made a "one" on the second hole at the local club, a mashie pitch over a pond which measures a little more than a hundred yards. The doctor played holds and when he saw the ball sailing far over the green he was alarmed, as he knew it was headed for the woods behind the green, where the chances are that he would never recover it. But to his surprise, as well as the utter astonishment of his opponent, he saw the ball hit a tree, clear another tree and bounding out of that the green roll gently to the cup and drop in.

Jimmy Montague, the poet, never won any golf championship, yet we have on good authority the statement that he once holed a mashie shot of a hundred yards with his eyes shut. This was when Montague first took up the game and he was not always certain of his shots. It appears that he missed the ball altogether in his first attempt and when admonished by his opponent to keep his eye on the ball remarked that he could do better by closing his eyes, whereupon he hit the ball, it went straight as an arrow for the green, bounced once or twice and then dropped into the hole.

HOLED AT 300 YARDS.

Recently, in Australia, a golfer made in one shot a hole that measured well over 300 yards. This was no ordinary play and could not be made by a duffer, who could scarcely hope to get more than two-thirds of the distance.

There are many cases on record of average golfers making freak drives. R. W. Foster, in the Seniors' Tournament at Apawamis, once drove nearly 310 yards, and he admits that it is more than twice as far as he ordinarily hits the ball when he gets a good one. On this occasion Foster had the wind behind him, and he gave the little white pill all that he had. It was a beautiful shot and at the end of its flight landed on a rock, taking almost as much distance off the rock as it had already carried. Then it rolled considerable distance down a hill.

Vardon once made a shot that will live in history long after the great English golfer is dead. Playing a round one day, he got in trouble at the home hole and landed so close to the clubhouse that it looked as if he was due to waste a shot, but instead he lofted the ball almost straight up into the air and over the clubhouse on to the green, so close to the hole that he was able to make the putt quite easily.

RESULTED AS PLANNED.

In the championship at Baltusrol a few years ago, Mike Brady sent the ball straight up over a high tree and dropped it within a foot of the cup. Neither of these shots were the result of accidents nor attended by any unusual luck. Both men believed the shots possible, and made them, although there was considerable luck in the ball landing so close to the pin.

The most satisfactory shot that I ever made was one that I played at Leland last Winter. My drive landed in the rough up against a tuft of grass that made it almost impossible for me to get a free swing at the ball. Nor was this my only trouble, as the green was two hundred yards away and to reach it I would be compelled to keep the ball low to pass under a nearby tree, directly in the line of play. After this was done I had to slice the ball to make it pass around another tree. To my surprise the shot came off exactly as I had planned it and the little pill landed on the well trapped green only two feet from the cup. I had luck in getting so near to the hole but the shot came off just as I had planned it.

The story has been told often about the golfer in England who found his ball in a paper bag and played bag and all to the green. The ball when nearing the green jumped out of the bag and made a bee line for the hole and succeeded in finding a resting place there.

PLAYED SHOE, TOO.

Bobby Jones had a similar experience in this country. It was in the Southern championship at New Orleans last Summer. I read about it in the press reports of the game but later heard the story from Bobby's own line. His ball landed into a wheelbarrow in which was a pair of old pants, a stove pipe, an old straw hat and a discarded shoe. When he walked up to get it the ball was lying in the heel of the shoe. Young Jones took out a niblick and played shoe and all towards the green and the ball landed so close to the hole that he was able to make the putt and win his match.

There have been all sorts of stories told of balls being played from the tops of trees and of balls landing in birds' nests. A golfer at Van Cortlandt Park one time found his ball in a tree so closely wedged between two branches that he was compelled to hit it ten times before he got the ball out on the fairway and then he longed.

Another golfer out in Cleveland, as the story goes, once climbed a tree to play his ball out and made such a good job of it that he holed out, getting a birdie and winning the hole.

Charles L. Fletcher, playing at Dunwoodie, once put his mashie shot on a short hole two feet from the pin, whereupon his opponent came along and hit the ball with his drive and put it in the hole.

Rest assured—

WORCESTER CITY LINKS BIG AID TO GOLFERS

Worcester, Nov. 10.—No city in the country has done more to make golf playing pastime than Worcester. Five years ago one of the first free municipal links was established here in Elm Park and flourished.

Each year brings groups of city fathers from divers sections of the country to see how the links are patronized, kept up and made partly self-supporting. The result is the free links idea has taken firm root in many of the biggest cities of the nation.

The Worcester municipal golf links are situated on a car line, ten minutes from City Hall, within a single fare zone. It has nine of the sporty test holes one would care to play over, a pond, brook and bog throwing natural hazards against the chasers of the little ball. Then there are several lanes that open wide their never-satisfied mouth to the sky and golfer who shoots a trifle off the line of the pin. And there is plenty of rough.

ANNUAL FEES $3.

Following the eliminating of the creeks that meandered aimlessly over the links the first two years it was operated gratis by the city, came the free plan. Mr. Holland decided that $2 per head was a fair registration fee. Then he placed a tax of $2 per locker. Two hundred and fifty-five golfers annual fee per person of $3 and included the shower bath privileges, etc.

Last season was a banner year at the links, 320 persons registering. That made a total revenue of $780 from that source and 168 lockers brought $810 in addition, making a grand total of $1,031. The city appropriates $2,000 for the links annually, making the running of the course stand Worcester about $1,600. Most of the outlay for the links comes through the employment of a ground-keeper.

There is no professional at the links. The first two years, Frank Goss was pro. He received no money from the city for his efforts, and depended upon the sale of golf supplies, the rental of clubs, repairing clubs and giving lessons.

MAY RENT CLUBS

Thanks to the city, a person may rent a set of five clubs for a round of golf for 25 cents. Balls are sold at a slight margin over their cost to the city. Caddies are to be found, but most of the players carry their own clubs as a rule.

That the golfers registered for the links might get a ratting from the M. G. A. and thus be eligible to handicaps and for admission to tournaments, the Green Hill Golf Club was formed among patrons of the links. Then came matches with municipal links teams from Hartford, St. Louis, Boston, etc. And these have given the old Scotch game a great boost hereabouts, besides turning out some top-notch players.

BERKSHIRE CLUBS MAP OUT FINE 1920 PROGRAM

Pittsfield, Nov. 10.—Three open golf tournaments over 18-hole courses will be on the 1920 program in the Berkshires with the Pittsfield Country Club, the Stockbridge Country Club and the Wyantenuck Club of Great Barrington each staging big tourneys in August.

For the first time in nearly fifteen years the Pittsfield Club had an open tournament this year, and the new 18-hole course made a big hit. The directors are determined to put on next year an even larger tournament as the club where the late Wm. Anderson was professional for several years while he was winning one national open golf championship after another.

MISSED CONGRESSMAN.

Stockbridge staged a tournament this year, but it did not have as large a field as usual owing to the fact that Congressman Allen T. Treadway, always a prime factor in Stockbridge sporting that the plays which brought golf, was too busy in Washington to take much of a hand in attracting star players, and Walter Prichard Eaton, the writer, who for several seasons was the club secretary, has practically abandoned golf to devote his time to his country place in Sheffield.

Next year, however, will see more of the stars who have competed in the annual event at Stockbridge, endeavoring to get their name on the trophy which becomes the permanent property of the party winning the cup three times. Roger Hovey, four years ago, landed the tournament for the third time in a row and won the elegant trophy for which there had been competition over a dozen years. He also has one leg on the new trophy, as has J. A. Toole of Holyoke, who during the past summer made a clean sweep of the Berkshire tournaments, winning at Pittsfield, Stockbridge and Great Barrington.

IMMORTALIZED BY BRYANT.

The Wyantenuck course at Great Barrington, through which flows Green River, the stream which William Cullen Bryant immortalized, is one of the most scenic links in New England. Furthermore, the turf is in excellent condition, and the live wires on the club intend to make a bid to land a national tournament. John Shepard Jr., of Boston, is a member of the Wyantenuck Club, and has been a great help in attracting star golfers to the tournaments held there.

Among the golfers na has brought to Great Barrington to play are Jesse Guilford Arthur G. Lockwood former Massachusetts champion, Frank G. Hoyt; Roger Hovey, S. D. Bowers of the Brooklawn Club, Bridgeport; Dwight Partridge of Redford, Thomas Sherman of Utica, N. Y.; J. D. Standish of Detroit and numerous other stars.

DOPE WENT ASTRAY IN FIVE BIG FOOTBALL GAMES

By CHARLES E. PARKER.

Old Dr. F. B. Dope went a-sprawling no less than five times Saturday, when certain riotously gay athletes from Princeton, Tufts, Georgetown, Pittsburgh and Amherst playfully kicked the crutches from his quivering hands. And every time the old boy flopped he dragged someone's football prestige with him.

When Princeton cracked the crutch-kicking comedy Harvard's championship hopes ended. When Tufts turned the trick the little claim of the then unbeaten Detroit team tumbled. At Georgeton's turn the record of the then unbeaten Navy team was altered. Pittsburgh's successful effort at spilling the doc found the then unvalloped Washington and Jefferson eleven picking itself from the mire of defeat. And, when Amherst followed suit, down came the hope of the then unblemished Wesleyan array.

Except for those few instances the doc hobbled his weekly journey as per expectations.

Never in football's fifty-year history has a single day been marked by such heart-stimulating play, or have so many undefeated teams found themselves out-played or outscored. Every major college contest in which Eastern teams engaged saw the play fluctuate continually from one to the other side, and no team, regardless of the result, was certain of the final outcome of its game until the final second of the final minute had registered on timers' stop watches.

DOUBTFUL ALL THE WAY.

In the two leading attractions of the day—the Harvard-Princeton and Dartmouth-Pennsylvania games—doubt as to the ultimate score prevailed until the final whistle sounded. Harvard registering the tying points when the game was one minute from its end, and Dartmouth and Pennsy alternating in leading for five times before the game was declared the victor by one point.

Many other games vied with this pair of contests. Tufts' fourpoint victory over Detroit coming in the last three minutes of the game; Yale's 14-point win over Brown developing in the final half after Yale's team had battled nearly forty-thirty minutes; Georgetown's double field goal decision over the Navy developing in the second period; and Pittsburgh's seven-point advantage over Washington and Jefferson being cut to one point in the concluding seconds of their clash.

But of all the upsets, the one which stands out as the most unexpected was that which transpired on Palmer Stadium, Princeton, N. J., where the twice-trimmed Tigers forced undefeated Harvard to a tie battle.

CREDIT DUE TO BACKS.

The majority of football fans did not concede the Princeton eleven much of a showing, and the common opinion was that only Harvard's power in fourth down would Princeton so much as score, and when, at the start of the game, Harvard made a first down in fourteen yards into Princeton's territory Palmer Stadium guests would have risked the contents of the club's hand on a one-sided Harvard rout. But Princeton forced Harvard's hand, and then proceeded to show her wide from the mark are some football prognosticators.

What would have happened to Harvard had Princeton boasted a line of somewhere near equal weight had had its star tackle, Stanley Pek, in the fray can only be guessed. As it was the Princeton line, weighed fifteen pounds to the man and minus a player whose ability could be relied on to fill the hole left by Pek, was forced to meet Harvard's linesplaying ability that when, in the last moments of play, it became time to tie the score, they employed forward passes in which they had failed even to register for nine-tenths of the distance to Princeton's goal line.

Not that there was doubt in many minds as to whether the linemen knew that forward passes had been barred, but a number of persons figured that the plays which brought Princeton gained much through playing the latter teams was amply evidenced in the game, for not only had Princeton defeats developed a fighting spirit that added at least 50 per cent. to Princeton's ability, but from the plays Colgate and West Virginia used the Tigers selected and mastered at least two forward pass formations, which told cunningly against the Crimson.

The Harvard-Princeton game, like the Harvard-Yale game of 1916, showed that Eddie Casey, to consistently gain by rushing play, must be given excellent interference past the line of scrimmage. Princeton, by driving in its ends and tackles, broke up Casey's interference repeatedly and only on two occasions did the Natick boy make appreciable gains from behind the line of scrimmage, while several times he was tackled for losses. Given a broken field, as was the case with Casey on one forward pass, or recovered fumbls and one Princeton punt, and he becomes almost unstoppable, but it seems he must be aided past the scrimmage line before his carrying ability counts.

NO EASY OPPONENT.

With the Detroit-conquering Tufts eleven coming to the Stadium this week, the Harvard team will face anything but a sinecure, for the remarkable material with which Coach Whalen has been working this Fall seems to have found itself, and Tufts will enter the game determined to score another win over the Crimson.

Whether Princeton can maintain the form it displayed against Harvard in the Princeton-Yale game this week, will be a much debated point. Strubing, who was knocked out in the second of Saturday's play, will return to the lineup; Keck, the giant Princeton tackle, will take part in the Tiger-Bulldog battle. The recently learned forward passes will be more familiar to the team, and it would seem Yale will face even tougher opposition than did Harvard.

But in the Yale eleven, Princeton also will find the going more difficult. Yale's more impressive victory over Brown indicated the superlative quality of the Hu...rd and Yale teams. It should be remembered also that when Tufts engaged Yale, Tufts attempted eighteen forward passes in the course of which were intercepted by Yale and only one of which was completed by Tufts, conclusive proof Princeton forward passes should not go as well. Then again, Yale's line play, since the Boston game, has been in marked contrast to the brand disclosed by Harvard, and it is within the range of possibilities Princeton's running attack will not prove quite so telling.

PENN'S ROUGH TACTICS.

Whether a break in relations will develop through Pennsylvania's rough play against Dartmouth on Saturday, during which Jim Robertson, the Green's star back, and Myers, one of its best ends, sustained broken bones, has not been announced. The officiating in that game drew many unfavorable comments from the spectators, for although one Pennsylvania player was put out of the game, those present failed to detect a single case of deliberate attempts on the part of Pennsylvania players to injure Dartmouth opponents.

As was the general prediction, the game proved an evenly-matched affray, and only in the kicking of the goals from touchdown was the scoreballoned in Dartmouth's favor. Dartmouth having faced in quick succession following opponents to whom faced by Pennsylvania, found itself a bit over the edge physically, and when the latter's determination of its indomitable spirit was the Green able to make a successful showing.

Because of its narrow margined victory Wesleyan's win over Rochester, Dartmouth and Colgate's wins remain at the top of the Eastern list, and this week each faces a game that will determine whether one or both will gain the Eastern title, or whether that title will be divided among the several once-beaten teams.

What Has Happened So Far

Clive Hurbert, brother of a duke, but debonair scorner of the nobility and titles, without duties or responsibilities, is at Dover, on his way to Calais, when he is irresistibly attracted by a pretty girl in the dining room of the Lord Warden Hotel. Its unconventionally introduces himself to her and she half-humorously accepts the adventure. They fall desperately in love, and he swears they have been chosen for each other. He begs her to elope with him, but she refuses. Clive returns home.

CLIVE went up to his own rooms. They were in the tower of the west wing of the house, and were led up to by a narrow winding staircase whose stone steps had been worn into saucers. One room, low and beamed and wide, with an uneven floor of unpolished oak—which was, for all that, shiny from the passing of feet—a queer fireplace at the side of which there was a secret door leading out to the roof—the rapscallion Charles II had used it during one of his weak-kneed attempts to assert himself—three slit windows, all barred with rusty iron, and several fine pieces of Jacobean furniture, led into the other.

This was more or less the same size, the same shape and build, and made a bedroom in which no man slept who was fearful of ghosts. Like the rest of the house, it reeked with history and echoed with the footsteps of the dead, such as lie in narrow, cold-looking bed William Hurbert had been murdered in his sleep during the Wars of the Roses.

Curious Feelings

These two rooms, cut off from all the other and a abbey-like door, all nail-studded, had belonged to a series of second sons. For this reason they had been Clive's since he had been old enough to sleep alone.

It was with curious feelings that he stood in the middle of the latting room once more. Only a few days before he had said good-by to it, and all the numerous mementoes of his boyhood and youth, with immense relief. The old house seemed to have lost its meaning. It had outlived itself and dwindled into a mere show-place. To him there was something so pathetic about it all that it depressed and weighed him down. Up to its very gates a thriving, new town had run like a swift, exhilarated, undisciplined stream, with throbbing factories and glaring red-brick schools, municipal buildings and innumerable streets of small, exactly similar houses, which, in their flat-faced, cheap, undigested monotony of appearance, resembled to an almost ludicrous degree the half-baked people who lived in them. It seemed to stand in the way of the strong, irresistible current of social advancement like a downed dam. It was a sort of Rip Van Winkle, hoary and carbuncled with time, peering through the branches of old trees at a new race with new ideas and almost a new language. His brother, fifteenth Duke of Cheshire, was one of the small band of men who were referred to by the comic papers and those that were unconsciously comic as a figure of fun.

He was spoken of by pantomime comedians and Punch as a back-woodsman, and by the shifty, self-seeking party politician into whose inefficient and dishonest hands the land of England had fallen, as a "damned Duke." He had felt himself and his brother and his people to be mere show people, pathetically, comically out of place in a pushing, demolishing self-educated century. He had turned his back on it and them with a deep breath, intending to go out as Mr. Clive Hubert, as plain a man as all the other plain men, on an equality with the plainest.

He had gone first to London, and then to Dover, with all the relief of one of the figures in a pageant who had shed his historically picturesque garments and was back again in life. To find himself home once more, in its wonderful but unreal atmosphere, looking again through its barred windows at the grand old park which in the policies were waiting rapaciously to grab, seeing again, away in the distance, the smoke of the factories that belched forth incessantly, and listening to the graveyard quietude that always reared over the crumbling, fragrant place, brought back the sensation of being an anomaly, a gargoyle on the walls of a garish white jerry-built structure out of which the workmen had only just gone, leaving their heterogeneous mess of shavings and lime, broken pipes and unsightly paraphernalia behind them.

Took Her to London

He had taken Helena from Dover to London. All the way through the garden-like country of Kent, with its acres of pale green, lapping hops pole high, he had sat opposite to her in a carriage in which they were alone. He had attempted with no great success to talk of impersonal things, and had parted with her at Victoria Station among a crowd of homegoers with a long, silent hand-grasp.

He had shut the door of her excellent, unnoticeable limousine, and stood bare-headed until it was out of sight. Then he, who had not yet recovered from a serious illness or an awful loss. And when he drove to his two small rooms in Burr street, St. James', he was no longer the undergraduate, the boy of twenty-five, to whom life was a single-handed game, an adventure, a pastime, but an affair in which another took a more prominent part than himself—a period of years which could be frittered away in the spendthrift spirit, leaving nothing tangible to show for it, or made and used best of because there was someone who looked to him to spend it well.

And it was with this new and surprising sensation of having been suddenly awakened from sleep, of having been given an answer to a riddle so simple that he had never considered it worth while to solve, that he went home again—a man.

He saw plainly enough where he stood at that moment. He made no fut'le effort to cast any sort of glamour over the hard fact that faced him. He loved Helena, the young Duchess of Harwich, not with a momentary passion, but for all time, with all his heart and soul and body. He had played the game at Dover because she had put him on his honor. How long, being young and impatient, loving like a man and a strong man, with all the natural desires of youth and a great longing to possess what was his by all the laws of nature, he would be able to continue to play the game he did not know. He was afraid to ask himself. He knew—she had told him—that he had only to go and say to her: "Come, you must, you shall, come," and she would follow. How long would he be able to resist? And if he did resist, what ultimate good would be achieved except that of having sacrificed a great, blazing, beautiful love on the effete altar of a man-made law?

Well, he would see. He came of a race of men and women who had never failed to take what they wanted, whether lawfully or unlawfully. They had not been held back by any such effete, Christian shibboleth as morality, and it, when nearing the end of their lives, they had time to think of God and the great hereafter and their silent moments were made uneasy by a little fear or a snippet of superstition, they built a church in atonement for those unlicensed acts which even then they looked back upon with a thrill of pleasure. This young man had, therefore, several things to fight against in his attempt to restrain himself.

Inherited Instincts

There were his inherited instincts, handed down to him from a long line of tyrannisers, masters of serfs, lords of men-at-arms, kings' men and rulers, all born to the high-channed intolerant belief that they were unique among God's creatures, to pick stolen fruit with impunity and thus confer a favor, to bend the knee to nothing but self, to no man but the King. And there was his own Gilbertian upbringing in an atmosphere of Puritanism really in which the middle-class rabid snobbishness of Eton and Oxford had taken their share. He must have been almost inhuman if, underneath his own uncomfortable sense of humor and realization of the ridiculous, there was not a good deal of the Hurbert-ness which made the instant gratification of a whim and a desire his right by birth and position His fight, then, was against himself as well as his ancestry, his own overwhelming passion and the masterly inability to apply the common truths and ordinary laws that was the privilege of his people. It was to be a fight indeed, and he knew it But, whether he also knew it or not, he had two good weapons in his possession. One was a streak, a big streak, in any time, and bosses me around just as if I was you!"

Surprises Mother

Clive opened the door softly. His mother was sitting alone in that enormous room in which not even a tramp could have made himself comfortable. Her chair was drawn up near the window to allow the light to fall over her left shoulder With her small soft figure, dressed in very plain black, with a neat touch of white at the neck and the wrists, her perfectly white, soft hair brushed scrupulously out of any semblance of curl, her small, pretty features and large, dark eyes behind gold-rimmed spectacles—rather bovine in their wideness apart—she might very well have been the housekeeper of the place, a dear little old lady about whom everything seemed soft and gentle, and who looked as though her passage through life had been accompanied by much grief out of which she had managed to come with a sort of determined cheerfulness and with the childlike and beautiful application of her religious belief

The Vogue for Gold Hats

By Rita Stuyvesant

BLENDING beautifully with the brilliant Autumn colorings are the gay, gold hats that one sees in the most exclusive shops along the Avenue. Gold for afternoon and gold for evening is the millinery mode fashionable women are now sponsoring, for late Fall and early Winter wear. There are chic tailored models and dressy ones, and small hats that glow like spun-gold when allied with rich seal coats.

The roll-back-off-the-face model proved so popular during the first Fall days that one shop has copied it in gold brocade sprinkled with black motifs and for trimming tied a gold cord about the crown tasseled in black

Ravishing! expresses the charm of a wondrous creation of gold for evening or restaurant wear. Cloth of gold wrapped itself tightly about the head of a gorgeous bird of paradise lighted on the right side of the front, trailing its feathers down on the shoulder. To show a hat of this type to advantage one chooses an all-black net or velvet gown.

Another hat of conscious distinction for formal wear favored cloth of silver ostrich for its trimming. A large shape was silver covered, but the under-brim was faced with pale orchid colored velvet. The orchid color feather twined itself gracefully about the shallow crown, spreading its beauty over the brim.

Gold and black created a smart hat to be worn with a georgette frock of the same combination. A large, dressy shape was crowned with gold, but the brim was enormously black. A fascinating ruffle of black net fell softly from the rim of the brim giving that alluring Spanish effect so delightfully feminine.

A Daily Recipe

By MONSIEUR CHARLES A. PERRAUDIN, Delmonico's Chef

Tomato Sauce

Wash and clean a quarter of ripe tomatoes. Put in a saucepan and season with a little carrots, onion, minced fine, a little parsley root, a small bay leaf, a little thyme, salt and pepper, and let cook for half an hour on the side of the fire, strain through a coarse sieve in another saucepan, let come to a boiling point, and thicken with two tablespoonfuls of corn starch diluted with little cold water; add a little sugar and let boil for about 5 minutes, strain again through a fine sieve and when ready to serve stir 4 ounces of good butter in it.

The Wicked Marquis

By E. Phillips Oppenheim

"WELL, we've finished that, so far as you are concerned," she said, "but as soon as you have rescued the family and the wedding bells have ceased ringing, you'll find yourself faced with another problem. Did you notice a queer little cottage, right opposite the Abbey?"

"Of course I did."

Started Again

"Well, there's an old man sits in the garden there," she went on, "reading the Bible and cursing the Marquis most of the day. He used to do it years ago, and then he went to America. Now he's come back, and he's started it again."

"And what does the Marquis do about it?" David inquired.

"He can't do anything. The late Marquis made the old man a present of the cottage for saving his life, and they can't take it away from him now. I suppose he must have been really wicked when he was young—I mean the Marquis," she went on, "because, you see, he ran away with that old man's daughter. It's the sort of thing," she went on, "that Marquises are supposed to do in stories, but it doesn't make them popular in a small neighborhood. Now tell me about the good-looking woman who bowed to you, please?"

"She is the daughter of the man of whom you have been speaking," David told her. "She is the lady with whom the wicked Marquis eloped nearly twenty years ago."

Sybil's interest was almost breathless.

"You mean to say that you know the story—you—an American?"

"Absolutely," he replied. "I came into touch with it in a queer way. The old man Vont came back from America on the same steamer that I did. I'll tell you another thing. The wicked Marquis, as you call him, and that lady whom we have just passed dine together now at least one night a week, and the woman has become quite a famous authoress. She writes under the name, I believe, of Marcia Hannaway."

Sybil threw herself back in her seat

"Why, it's amazing!" she declared. "It turns a sordid little village tragedy into a piece of wonderful romance. Perhaps, after all, that is what makes the Marquis seem like a piece of wood to every other woman."

"I've heard it said," David continued, "that he has been entirely faithful to her all his life. Where do I stop, please?"

"Here," she replied, "at this shop. Please come in and choose your own sweets. I feel in one too romantic a frame of mind to even know beef from mutton."

David followed her a little doubtfully into the shop.

"Perhaps," he ventured to suggest, "as the nucleus of your meal has already been decided upon—"

"Of course," she interrupted; "cutlets. We want more cutlets. You needn't bother. I'll see about it."

David slipped into the next shop and reappeared with a huge box of chocolates, which he handed over apologetically.

"I am not sure whether you'll find these up to much."

"For the first time," she exclaimed, as she accepted them, "I realize what it must be to be a millionaire! I have never seen such a box of chocolates in my life. Do you mind going over to the grocery and letting him are me with you?" she went on. "It will be so good for our credit, and his in just one of the accounts we have to leave for a little time. Were you ever poor, Mr. Thain?"

More Difficult

"Poor, but not, alas! romantically so," he confessed. "To be the real thing, I ought to have earned my first few pounds, oughtn't I? You see, I didn't. I was educated by relatives, and when a great chance came my way I was able to take advantage of it. An uncle advanced me a thousand pounds, upon one condition"

"Had you to make him a partner?" she asked, in the intervals of giving a small order at the grocer's.

He shook his head.

"No," he said, almost gravely, "it wasn't a financial condition. In a way it was something more difficult."

She looked at him curiously.

"Whatever it was," she said, "if you promised, I am quite sure that you would keep your word."

They moved homewards and David was for a few minutes unexpectedly thoughtful. He deliberately approached Bromleys from the back, but even then it was impossible to avoid a distant view of the cottage. He looked towards it grimly.

"Conditions are stern things," he sighed.

"Haven't you kept that one yet?" she asked.

"The time is only just coming," he told her

She looked up at him pleadingly.

"Don't bother about it now, please," she begged. "This is such a delightful day. And whatever you do, you mustn't let it interfere with your eating three cutlets."

True to Life

The artist dipped his brush in a bucket of paint and wiped it across the canvas several times horizontally. When he had done this he took the result of his labor in hand and carefully placed it in an elaborate frame.

"What's the idea?" his boon companion inquired

"Impressionistic study."

"Do you mean to tell me that is a finished painting?"

"Certainly."

"What are you going to call it?"

"A village street as seen from the rear end of a motor cycle."

Excessive Effort

He, as the act-drop falls: "My dear, I will go into the lounge to stretch my legs." She: "You've head to the lounge to stretch your legs, and the last time when you came back they seemed very weak. I am afraid you are stretching them too much!"

When a Girl Marries

By Ann Lisle

Copyright, 1919, King Features Syndicate, Inc.

BUT even in this casual and curt reference to her marriage, I felt a certain satisfaction. It meant that Virginia had admitted me to a real intimacy, that she took for granted my understanding. And the fact I didn't understand at all, didn't trouble me greatly. Somehow I felt sure that I would—and before long.

"We'll have tea at Mornay's, then," resumed Virginia, "and while we sit there quietly I'll call Marcel and we'll go over the dinner with him. He's the prince of head waiters."

Suddenly I found myself a bit callous. I didn't mind borrowing money from Virginia now, or having her realize that I was short of actual cash. Now that Jim really had money, I was seemed no need for protecting his pride.

"The tea's my party," I said, "and I'd like to make a good enough impression on Marcel so he'll be nice to me if ever I come here alone. Suppose you lend me the twenty."

"Of course," replied Virginia, and after a minute she added: "I'm glad you're getting sensible, Anne."

So we had our tea, ordered our dinner for the next evening, made our impression on Marcel for all time, and then strolled down the avenue Ahead of us hurried a rather furtive young man, with his shoulders hunched and his fists jammed into the pockets of a belted by army overcoat. I kept getting fleeting glimpses of him through the crowd, and somehow he made me uneasy Then a gust of wind lifted his hat—a civilian article, like his suit—and I saw red curls. Neal!

That was why the furtiveness, the slouching yet hurrying pose, the dogged air of belonging there on the avenue, yet hating to be there because of the shabbiness had all impressed me so deeply from afar. This soldier, walking along in evident unemployment and deep discouragement, was my brother. And I had just given the head waiter at Mornay's a $20 bill. "Hurry—hurry, Virginia. It's Neal. I must catch up with him." I threw over my shoulder as I dashed ahead, hardly waiting to see whether or no Virginia hurried."

Then down the long corridor swung Pat Dalton. At sight of me he swept off his hat and threw back his gray head with the old proud gesture.

"My brother, Neal—have you seen him?" I cried.

But how Pat was staring over my head and I doubted if he had heard me. I dreaded and then in the entrance we stood Virginia." A moment and she was gone.

SHE DARKENED HER GRAY HAIR

Tells How She Did It With a Home-Made Remedy

Mrs. E. H. Boots, a well-known resident of Buchanan County, Ia., who darkened her gray hair, made the following statement:

"Any lady or gentleman can darken their gray or faded hair, and make it soft and glossy with this simple remedy, which they can mix at home. To half a pint of water add 1 ounce of bay rum, one small box of Barbo Compound and ¼ ounce of glycerine. These ingredients can be purchased at any drug store at very little cost. Apply to the hair every other day until the gray hair is darkened sufficiently. It does not color the scalp; is not greasy and does not rub off. It will make a gray-haired person look 40 to 20 years younger."

How to Remove Wrinkles Quickly

If the average woman only knew it, it is not at all difficult to preserve the youthful contour and velvety smoothness of complexion. Every woman hates to see her face wrinkled or baggy and practically every one has experimented with some sort of patent remedy in the effort either to remove such condition or ward it off.

As a matter of fact, the most effective remedy in the world is one that any woman can easily make up herself at home in a moment's time. Let her take one ounce of pure powdered saxolite, which she can purchase at any drug store and dissolve it in a half pint of witch hazel. Apply this harmless and refreshing solution to the face every day for a while. The results are surprising, to say the least. Even after the very first application a marked improvement is noticed, the wrinkles are less in evidence and the skin has a comfortable, new feeling of firmness that is most delightful.

What Kind of Blood Have You?

Thin, Pale and Watery—Keeping You Weak, Nervous and Run-Down—Or Rich, Red, Healthy Blood With Plenty of Iron In It To Give You Strength, Energy, Power and Endurance

Physician Says Iron Is Red Blood Food

Explains How Nuxated Iron — Master Strength-Builder of The Blood—Helps Give Renewed Vim and Energy to Men and Puts Roses Into The Cheeks of Women.

If you are easily, if you look pale, haggard and worn, if you feel generally weak, nervous and run-down it would probably astonish you to see a drop of your own blood under a powerful microscope and compare it with a drop of pure, healthy blood rich in iron. Actual blood tests show that a tremendously large number of people who are weak and ill lack iron in their blood and that they are ill for no other reason than lack of iron. Iron deficiency paralyzes healthy, energetic action, pulls down the digestive system and weakens the entire system.

There are thousands whose bodies are nearly breaking down at a time when they should be full of rich, red blood, healthy health action defiance to disease simply because they have allowed their blood to run low in iron. By allowing it to remain thin, weak and impoverished, and getting it more and more below the standard of strength and endurance. The old formula of "Nature will supply the needful iron" is inadequate to meet modern conditions, as our foods are largely deficient in this important element. Nevertheless, although the blood test has been used by many physicians for years, and although physicians, thousands of people still insist on dosing themselves with worthless drugs, simply because they do not realize how iron deficiency is responsible for their ailments.

Dr. T. Alphonsus Wallace, a physician of strong reputation, formerly in this country and abroad, says: "I do not make a practice of recommending advertised medicinal products, but I have found Nuxated Iron so potent in restoring to run-down conditions of health that all should know it. The men and women of America are pale, sickly and weak because they have not blood enough, or blood that was the case twenty or thirty years ago. Pallid people quickly realize a remarkable gain in strength after taking Nuxated Iron for a few days, and within three weeks it has been known to make astonishing blood and put me in a superb physical condition."

BOSTON IS WAY BEHIND IN RED CROSS MOVE

Leaders Depend on Renewals by Old Members to Put Metropolitan District Over Top

Early returns today failed to boost the Boston Metropolitan Chapter's Red Cross Roll Call fund as much as had been expected. Only a few thousand additional memberships were reported up to noon.

It is apparent that Metropolitan Boston must hustle today and tomorrow, for the drive ends at midnight of Armistice Day. The workers today pin their hopes on present Red Cross members voluntarily renewing their memberships, as it will be a physical impossibility for the solicitors to visit everyone who has not yet enrolled.

The total number of new members reported enrolled this morning in a few suburban towns and from industrial concerns of Boston was 4,271. The fund was increased by the following cash contributions:

100 PER CENT. FIRMS.

L. J. Mutty (personal additional contributions), $1,000; Helen B. Emmons, $1,000; Mrs. S. Brooks, $1,000; S. Brooks, $500; Thomas S. Dee, $100; Margaret Walsh, $50; Mr. and Mrs. Charles C. Jackson, $100; Mrs. John Chipman Gray, $100; Gertrude L. Amory, $50; two anonymous contributions of $100 each; Mrs. Charles W. Blodgett, $100; Sarah F. Bremer, $100; Ellen P. Hall, $50.

The following firms reported 100 per cent. membership enrollment:

Walter Jacobs, Cadillac Automobile Company of Boston, Stone & Webster, Welling Sears Company, Linwood H. Young & Co., Josiah Cummings & Son, Snappy Box Lunch Company, Flintkote Company, Amos Hammersley, J. A. & Bird Co., Pettingill Andrews Company, Berry Wales Company, Atwood & McManus Box Company.

Industrial concerns reporting today jumped the total of membership enrollments in Boston proper over 2,000, from 4,151 to 6,178.

Belmont increased its total enrollment from 500 to 1,000, Brookline from 2,528 to 3,086, Dover from 59 to 150, Hingham from 5 to 500, Watertown from 3,201 to 3,426, Allston-Brighton from 444 to 2,061.

Word was received from the "Flying Parson" today to the effect that he had left Clinton, N. C., yesterday by airplane, with Washing as his first scheduled stop. He will fly from Washington to Philadelphia today and take the midnight train from New York for Boston, arriving here in ample time for his Red Cross flight from Bedford Field tomorrow morning.

GALLI-CURCI IN FINE VOICE AT CONCERT

Symphony Hall Audience Delighted by Interpretation of Well-Arranged Program

An audience that filled every seat and occupied every inch of stage and standing room greeted Amelita Galli-Curci at Symphony Hall, yesterday afternoon, when the songbird gave a delightful concert, including ornate airs from old operas, a few songs of sentiment, French "chergerettes" and other choice melodies that displayed the remarkable range, technique and sweet clarity of her voice.

Especially pleasing was the demonstration of the flute-like quality of her song in "Caro Nome," from "Rigoletto," and in the "Variazione," the long sustained high notes arousing the audience to great enthusiasm.

"I Saw Thee Weep," a pretty song written by Galli-Curci's accompanying pianist, Homer Samuels, scored a hit, the latter sharing in the plaudits of the audience.

The prima donna was generous in her response to encores, "Suwanee River" and "Home, Sweet Home" being two of the most pleasing. In the latter Galli-Curci sang at the piano, acting as her own accompanist.

Manuel Berenguer, flutist, rendered several difficult selections with fine art, and as accompanist to Mme. Galli-Curci in the Mad Scene from "Hamlet," shared in a triumph which thrilled the house.

Mme. Galli-Curci's next appearance in Symphony Hall will be in March, during the season of the Chicago Grand Opera Company at the Boston Opera House.

MUSTEROLE—QUICK RELIEF! NO BLISTER!

Soothes and Relieves Like a Mustard Plaster Without the Burn or Sting

Musterole is a clean, white ointment, made with the oil of mustard. It does all the work of the old-fashioned mustard plaster — does it better and does not blister. You do not have to bother with a cloth. You simply rub it in—and usually the pain is gone!

Many doctors and nurses use Musterole and recommend it to their patients. They will gladly tell you what relief it gives from sore throat, bronchitis, croup, stiff neck, asthma, neuralgia, congestion, pleurisy, rheumatism, lumbago, pains and aches of the back or joints, sprains, sore muscles, bruises, chilblains, frosted feet, colds of the chest (it often prevents pneumonia). 30c and 60c jars; hospital size $2.50.

MUSTEROLE
WILL NOT BLISTER

DON'T WHIP!

Stop Lashing Your Bowels with Harsh Cathartics but take "Cascarets."

Everyone must occasionally give to the bowels some regular help or else suffer from constipation, bilious attacks, stomach disorders and sick headache. But do not whip the bowels into activity with harsh cathartics.

What the liver and bowels need is a gentle and natural tonic, one that can substantially be used without harm. The gentlest liver and bowel tonic is "Cascarets." They put the liver to work and cleanse the colon and bowels of all waste, toxins and poisons without griping—they never sicken or inconvenience you like Calomel, Salts, Oil or Purgatives.

Twenty-five million boxes of Cascarets are sold each year. They work while you sleep. Cascarets cost so little, too.—Advertisement

O'SULLIVAN WINS BIG CAMBRIDGE AUDIENCE

The concert by John O'Sullivan at the Central Square Theatre, Cambridge, yesterday afternoon under the auspices of the St. Mary's Catholic Association was the biggest and most successful held in Cambridge. It was the first concert ever given in the auditorium of the Central Square Theatre, the largest hall in Cambridge, but large as it was it could not accommodate the multitude which turned out to hear the big Irish tenor. Father McNamara of St. Mary's Church, who conceived the idea of bringing O'Sullivan to Cambridge, was congratulated on all sides over the financial and artistic success of the affair, and the big committee headed by Mayor Quinn, who had the business end in charge, was also heartily congratulated.

O'Sullivan was in wonderful voice and his program was a carefully chosen blend of operatic airs, Irish songs and English ballads. When he sang such songs as "The Wearing of the Green" and "When Shall I Again See Ireland?" the applause was deafening.

After the concert Mr. O'Sullivan held an impromptu reception. Miss Hazel Clark, violinist, gave general satisfaction, by her skillful bowing, while Earl Widener at the piano was all that could be desired. Charles Martel, organist, exhibited the big organ of the Central Square Theatre to fine advantage.

Help the Boston American's Christmas Basket Fund

Are you going to have a Christmas dinner? Are you going to forget, just for one day, that living is high, and some kinds of food scarce, and that the pinch of Winter is upon us? Are you and yours going to have a day of real cheer, with turkey and "fixin's," and light and warmth and music and exchange of gifts?

The American hopes so, and even at this early day wishes a happy Yuletide to all its readers. But how about those less fortunate than we? Those who are almost dreading the great holiday because it will mean nothing to them but dreariness and hunger and cold? Those with little children in their homes, who will, perhaps, go dinnerless to bed. Shall you think of them on that day? and thinking of them, shall you enjoy your own cheer more, or less?

This is the thought that started the Boston American's Christmas Basket Fund, now in its sixth year. Last season the fund totalled more than $9,000, and fed more than 2,000 families. This year it is hoped to provide dinners for at least 3,000 families. To that end, the American heads the list of contributors with its check for $1,000. Checks should be made payable to the Boston American's Christmas Basket Fund, No. 80 Summer street, Boston.

Governor Coolidge has already aided with a strong appeal to support the fund. The great need for such help, everyone knows. That times are harder for many families than ever before, no one will question. Rents are exorbitant; prices of food almost prohibitive. Hundreds of families in the struggle for existence have to choose between adequate shelter and adequate food. They cannot have both. Special days like Christmas have little significance for them; hunger on one day is like hunger on another.

What a well-filled basket of Christmas cheer will mean to these people let the generous reader picture to himself. What it has meant in the past, the grateful expression of thousands to the American has already testified. What that well-filled basket, given to some poor family where, perhaps, there are little ones with undernourished, aching little "tummies" to be fed, will mean to the giver! What an added glow of comfort and generous gratification will be added to your own holiday feast to know that you have shared it.

Dear reader, let the thought sink in. Let it warm your heart and open your purse. Any sum, no matter what, will help; the more you can afford to give, the more mouths will be fed. Perhaps you, too, have felt the pinch of high prices and shortage of many necessities; to give anything at all may mean a real sacrifice. The American appreciates that—but it knows its readers. They are people who can, and do, make such sacrifices. They have shown it hundreds of times; they will show it again this year.

And what they do to aid the Christmas basket fund this season will be repaid to them many fold in the gratitude of those to whom their kindness goes out, and in the warmth of their own hearts when, on the "day of days," they are able to look back and contemplate a generous action.

Readers—give to the American Christmas Basket Fund.

Should Pay Teachers Well for Safety of Republic

"Give me an idea and I'll conquer the world," William Hohenzollern might have said back at the beginning of this decade.

Someone gave him the "Berlin to Bagdad" slogan and he started out on his job. Had not some of his men sunk the Lusitania, shot Edith Cavell, ravished Belgium and pulverized the beautiful Rheims cathedral, Mr. Hohenzollern might have put his idea across.

But just as the channel ports appeared to be in German grasp and the way to Paris almost open, up came an idea from faroff America based on "Right alone makes might" and the channel ports were saved. Americans at Chateau Thierry rolled back the German advance and the "Berlin to Bagdad" idea died aborning.

Back of these American soldier-crusaders here in these United States where their winning idea was implanted in their hearts, stood the vast body of American school teachers. Theirs was the work as executed by the American army that saved the day for the allies and the United States.

We are giving bonuses to the boys who did the fighting as slight testimonial to what they did for us and our country. We are now asked to give something to their teachers, the men and women in the public schools who made their morale possible. And we should do it.

Let us not forget that though Germany was defeated all is not yet won. Mexico, untaught, illiterate, lies at the mercy of bandits and unscrupulous capitalists.

Here in America the struggle between capital and labor grows ever more threatening.

Who is so capable of reconciling these two mighty and opposing forces as the teacher? He who teaches alike the children of labor and capital knows best where lies peaceful common ground.

But the work requires vision, patience and unselfishness. Poorly paid it will never draw to its ranks the talent that in years past has made the American public school teacher the safety of the republic.

Boston school teachers are asking an advance of $600 yearly salary. Living costs have advanced in four years' time from 75 to 100 per cent. Teachers' salaries in that period have advanced but 3½ to 16 per cent.

When the Legislature convenes next week in special session Boston should see that its school teachers are awarded this $600 increase. It is a just and moderate request.

By K. C. B.

DEAR K. C. B.—Our association is composed of service managers of the automobile companies of Greater New York. We desire to prepare a standard service statement so that we may assure the owners of automobiles that we are sincere in our efforts to gain the confidence of the public through competency.

Your articles have always interested us, and I have been asked by several members to ask you the question: What is service?

In other words, what do you expect from a service station by way of service? Yours very truly,

Automotive Service Association of New York.
R. C. ROGNON, President.

MY DEAR Mr. President.
JUST SUPPOSING,
THAT YOU'VE bought a car.
AND YOU'VE spent a lot of money.
FOR EXTRA equipment.
AND YOU'VE paid for everything.
AND YOU begin to feel.
IF YOU met the president.
OF THE automobile company.
THAT IN all probability.
HE'D RUSH right up to you.
AND SHAKE your hand.
AND WANT to know.
HOW YOU like your car.
AND ALONG about then.
SOME LITTLE thing happens.
AND YOU have to get something.
FROM THE service station.
AND YOU drive down there.
AND GO in with a smile.
AND NOBODY meets you.
AND YOU find somebody
AND ASK politely.
WHERE THE dingbats are
OR THE zuphus feathers
OR WHATEVER it is.
THAT YOU'VE come to get.
AND THE gentleman tells you.
AND YOU go to the place.
AND YOU find a counter.
WITH CLERKS behind it.
AND THEY'RE all very busy.
AND THAT'S all right.
AND YOU pick out one.
WHO SEEMS about through.
WITH THE customer he has.
AND YOU lean against the counter.
AND LOOK around.
AND JUST about the time.
THE CLERK you've chosen.
IS READY for you.
A TELEPHONE rings.
AND THEY call him to it.
AND FOR five or ten minutes.
YOU LISTEN to him.
TRYING TO tell someone.
WHATEVER IT is.
THAT HE'S trying to tell him.
AND THEN he's through.
AND COMES back again.
AND AFTER a while.
HE WAITS on you.
AND SO far as I know.
THAT'S THE only trouble.
I EVER have had.
AT A service station.
WHICH IN my opinion.
SHOULD BE a place.
WHERE YOU get good service.
IN A pleasant way.

I THANK you.

Armistice Day

By Win Brooks

WHERE rows of wooden crosses stand
O'er rough-made graves to mark the slain,
The dawn shows like a crimson band
And where the Marne reflects the red
Of flushing skies, and ever sings
To France its tribute to her dead,
The wakened morning spreads its wings.
The sun's red edge leaps in the skies,
And—as from God—its first ray falls
Where a cathedral's towers rise
Amid a wreck of blackened walls,
And seeks—where once the altar stood—
A crucifix, untouched, divine—
Alone unstained by ravished blood—
Alone the symbol of that shrine.

The day is up!—o'er Flanders' plain.
The sun is bright—its rays enfold
The crosses o'er the martyred slain—
And lo! they shine as burnished gold;
And westward where the Marne is bound
Between low banks of blackened sod
There floats upon the air a sound
Of requiems sung unto God.
A holy light encircles the grim
Cathedral walls—and high o'er head
Sweet unseen bells are rung by Him
Who calls—to worship there—our Dead.
Before that crucifix, unstained,
The souls of men are sanctified,
Attending—e'en as He ordained—
The Holy Mass of Those who died!

Lord, give us of Thy strength and of Thy light
That we may keep with Them war crucified
A sacred faith—Lord, help us through this night
That we may not break faith with Them who died.

TELLING 'EM TO YOUR WIFE

Young married folk, beware of the first lie.

It may seem a trivial matter, but you cannot imagine how far-reaching its effect may be.

One lie means two, and two lies mean four, and so it goes on, an ever-widening circle.

It may not need a second lie to cover the first lie, but when you have once broken your resolution to be perfectly frank, honest and aboveboard with your life partner, more lies roll along too easily.

Nearly every man can remember how low-down he felt when he told the first lie to his wife, and he had to fight against his better impulses to refrain from proclaiming the truth.

But after a time this impulse wore off and he felt no compunctions whatever about telling an untruth.

A falsehood is a misstatement without intention to deceive, and cannot harm the moral fibre of the one who makes the mistake, though its effect may be disastrous, as in the case of the lie, or deliberate deception.

Don't jeopardize your home happiness and security with a network of lies.

SECRETS OF THE PAST IN THE STARS

By Garrett P. Serviss

ALL readers of astronomical literature are familiar with the fact that, owing to the finite speed of light, we do not see the celestial bodies as they are at the moment of looking, but as they were a certain length of time before, the interval of time elapsed increasing with the distance. This is the basis of the use of the "light year" as a unit of stellar distance, one light-year standing for the distance that light, moving 186,330 miles per second, can travel in one year.

Sun 500 Seconds Away

Measured by this scale the distance of the moon would be about a second and a quarter and that of the sun about 500 seconds. But, of course, in actual practice the light-year scale is only applied to very remote objects, such as the stars, the nearest star being about four years distant, and the most remote ones probably hundreds of thousands of years.

It is interesting to recall that the time scale for estimation of distance is often used in human affairs, a certain place being described as so many "hours" or so many "days" away. Among savages this method of reckoning distance is universal.

Since the discovery that the celestial bodies undergo regular processes of development, so that the stars can be classified according to their respective ages and their state, or period, of evolution, a new aspect has been assumed by this time-and-distance scale in astronomy. It seems to offer the astonishing possibility of putting the universe before the eyes of the astronomer not only spatially but chronologically, so that events of hundreds of thousands of years ago, of tens of thousands of years ago, of thousands of years ago, and of the present time, may all be presented to him at the same instant!

Peculiarity of Radiation

For instance, we know that our sun has reached a certain period of development, characterized by certain peculiarities of its radiation, and we infer that at some unknown time in the past it must have been in a different condition, characterized by a different type of radiation.

Of course, we cannot roll back solar history and so actually see the sun in its former state, but suppose there be in the sky a star closely resembling our sun in mass and composition, whose birth was nearly simultaneous with the sun's, but whose distance from us is, say, a hundred thousand, or more, light-years; then it is evident that we see that star in the condition in which our sun was a hundred thousand or more years ago, and by studying its radiation we virtually study an earlier state of the sun itself.

This is an ideal representation of the matter intended merely to show the principle, and in practice it does not work out quite so simply; it could probably only be worked by a statistical method, or by a system of averaging. However, as detailed knowledge of the stars increases the means of more exact comparison are perfected. At present the method seems only applicable to a comparative study of the globular star clusters. Of this Harlow Shapley says:

Stars Older Than Records

"Stars in the nearest globular cluster are actually 200 centuries older at present than they appear in our records, and the light we now receive from the most distant systems has been en route about two hundred thousand years. A significant consequence of these unlike distances, thanks to the structural uniformity of stars and of globular clusters, is that we are able to compare phenomena separated by enormous intervals of time. The clusters range in distance from twenty thousand up to more than two hundred thousand light-years. The farther away the younger they are in our study and the less developed are their stars."

POPULAR ARTIST PAINTS OWN WIFE

Howard Chandler Christy, the great artist, who recently married his favorite model, has done a new picture of her. This time he admits the model is his wife. "Nancy" is the name of the picture, done in oils. It will be reproduced in all its glory of vivid coloring, a rare example of modern painting at its best, that every one will want to see and to preserve, on the first page of the magazine section of next Sunday's

On Marrying Young
No Infinite Universe?
What About Anglicizing?
The League, Now, Is O. K.

"Down to Gehenna or up to the throne, he travels the fastest who travels alone," says Kipling. Another saying is: "A young man married is a young man married."

The theory is that a man free from responsibility will go farther and faster than a man married with wife and children to think of.

James Auditore has a different theory. Five years ago he was working as longshoreman on the docks. He married at eighteen. Is thirty now. As you read he is sailing for Europe to arrange docking facilities for the big shipping concern of which he is the head.

Mr. Auditore says that marrying and having children when he was handling freight at thirty cents an hour made it necessary for him to think. Thinking got him the steamship line. Write this on your cuff: For every man married by marriage, a dozen have been "made" by their wives.

Scientists that command respect now announce that space is not unlimited. Lines are curved, and when you go far enough in a so-called straight line you are on a curve and must come back to the place whence you started. It is fine and convincing, theoretically. But, if space is limited, what is there outside of the limits? And if there is "nothing" outside, how far does that nothing reach?

Johnson said of man's will: "Sir, we know that the will is free and that is all there is of it." Ordinary men would say to the scientists, "Sirs, we know that space is infinite, because it must be, and that is all there is of that." As well talk of limited time as limited space. If you say time is limited, men ask, "How long a period was there before time began?" We are wiggling in infinite, unlimited time and space, and might as well get used to it. Wallace's book, "Man's Place in the Universe," would limit human beings and thought to this little earthly grain of sand. It is not convincing, but worth reading.

In the grand "Americanization" program that interests many it might be well to provide against Anglicizing the country in the name of Americanization. There is too much of John Bull in the Americanizing program. Too much tendency to call anything Irish, French, Italian, all wrong, and anything English all right. This American country is not an imitation England, but it is breeding too many imitation Englishmen.

Samples of the imitation will soon be traveling toward the Canadian frontier, taking with them elastic spines to bend low before a nice, ordinary, proud, free American standpoint, entirely useless little boy called the Prince of Wales.

Among these imitation English travelers will be the Secretary of State and a number of other officials. Is not this a pleasing exhibition of the pure spirit of democracy?

If Woodrow Wilson had a son can you imagine the prime minister of England and a lot of others, with the pregnant hinges of their spines well oiled, traveling hundreds of miles to meet him? You cannot.

You may say that the son of an English King is something more than the son of an American President. But you ought to say that is England, not in the United States.

The League of Nations is no longer a serious issue. This country will make its reservations and three of the four powers that planned to rule the world, England, Japan, France and Italy, will have to O. K. these reservations in writing before America goes in at all. That is number one.

Number two is a reservation, adopted fifty to thirty-five, allowing the United States, whenever it choose, to get out of the league and making this country sole judge as to whether or not the United States had done its full duty to the league before getting out.

It seems a good idea to keep for this country the right to come out where it goes in, and especially to reserve for America the right to judge its own conduct. Under our laws a citizen cannot sue the government without permission of Congress. It would be fallacy to give citizens of other nations the right to act as judge and jury in matters affecting us.

Reservation number two, among other things, will make it impossible for our British friends to say a little later: "Sorry, old dear, but you did not quite live up to your league duties, so I am compelled, most reluctantly, but in mere justice, to withhold payment of those few billions I borrowed of you." The reservation won't prevent repudiation or scaling down of American debts by Europe for they probably will not have the money to pay, but at least they will not be able to repudiate with a holier-than-thou explanation which was possible under the league as England fixed it originally.
